VETARZO BRAIN AND NERVE FOOD.

This remarkable compound, the result of the latest developments and achievements of modern chemistry, pharmacology, and therapeutics, is without equal in all cases of defective nerve power, whether induced by worry, over-work, unhealthy climate, dissipation, excess, youthful imprudence, or other influences incidental to the wear and tear and haste or overstrain of modern life. Sleeplessness, tremblings, palpitation, nervous dyspepsia, low spirits, mental and bodily prostration, muscular and local weakness, general and nervous debility, faulty nutrition, premature decay or deficiency of the vital forces, impaired vitality, harassing dreams, night disturbances, sudden startings, dimness of sight, defective hearing, loss of memory, inability to perform the various duties of life, or to enjoy its pleasures, restlessness that can settle to nothing, irritability of temper, female complaints, hysteria, painful periods, backache, bearing down sensations, nervous headache, wasting disease, night sweats, and all other phases of brain and nerve exhaustion, are successfully combated by this highly scientific preparation. Bracing up the system generally, it gives tone to the exhausted nerves, arrests all weakening wasting discharges, involuntary losses, &c.; restores the failing energies, and imparts new life and vigour to what had so recently seemed worn out, "used up," and valueless.

VETARZO BLOOD MEDICINE.

Never before was there anything like it, nor can its marvellous properties ever be equalled in all cases of poorness, impurity, or other imperfection of the blood from whatever cause arising. No sooner is it imbibed into the system than it permeates and penetrates to the minutest capillaries, overcoming and expelling the virus of disease, wheresoever and in whatsoever form met with; removing all blotches, pimples, scurf, scurvy, scrofulous and glandular swellings, discolorations, roughness and unsightly patches, &c. Its effects are almost magical in the treatment of gout, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, pains and swellings of the joints, discharges, secondary symptoms, eczema, lepra, psoriasis, bad legs, bad breasts, abscesses, ulcers, sores, goitre or Derbyshire neck, it improves the general health, and quickly removes long-standing bronchitis, asthma, and hacking, straining, spasmodic cough, too often the precursor of consumption.

CAUTION.—Ask for "VETARZO Brain and Nerve Food," or "VETARZO Blood Medicine," whichever is required, and see that you get them, as unprincipled vendors often try to palm off inferior preparations (usually their own manufacture), for the sake of extra profit. Price in England, 2/9. Every genuine bottle of these medicines bears the British Government Stamp with the words "VETARZO REMEDIES" impressed thereon, in white letters on a red ground, by direction of His Majesty's Hon. Commissioners. Registered Trade Mark "VETARZO." Legal proceedings will be taken against persons pirating.

COMMON SENSE IN A NUTSHELL.—A NEW medical work on the causes and most scientific and effectual means of self-cure ever discovered for nervous exhaustion, depression of spirits, want of zest and energy, &c., with practical observations on marriage and full directions for removing certain disqualifications that destroy the happiness of wedded life. It also treats on urinary derangements, secondary symptoms, stricture, &c., and no sufferer should fail to procure a copy. Post free in plain envelope on receipt of Postal Order Sixpence, from THE VETARZO REMEDIES Co., Gospel Oak, London, or of Agents for above medicines. Price 10 annas Post Free.

MEDICAL HALL, BENARES.

H. James Raisey, Esq., of Koolnah, Jessore, writes:—Having derived deal of benefit from the use of your "Essence of Chiretta" (combined with very small doses of quinine), both as prophylactic and anti-periodic for intermittent fevers of a malarious type which would not yield to the usual remedies employed, and which disease is very prevalent in the Districts of Lower Bengal, in particular those parts bordering on the Sundarban I think it incumbent on me to acquaint you thereof pro bono publico.

You are welcome to give this letter all the publicity you may deem necessary in order that this excellent remedy of yours may become generally known.

MARKET REPORT:—

The monthly Agricultural Bureau Report is out and gives the condition of the crop to be 89·1 per cent. against 75·5 at the same time last year and 71·9 year before last. The report is the same as private telegrams had estimated and no wide fluctuations occurred yesterday in the American markets. There ought to be now a better trade demand because all conservative consumers were awaiting this report. Prices are already in their favor and volume of business is likely to increase.

Here some sales of Oomra cotton are reported to have been made by exporters to native dealers. Ready cotton is not moving in sufficient quantity.

EXCELSIOR CINEMATOGRAPH.

The Auxteophonoscope.

This week this latest success from Home "Singing Pictures" will be found at the Popular Excelsior Cinematograph. We have heard of the talking machine and we have seen the living picture, but not yet has a contrivance been seen in Bombay which combines all the perfections of both. However this is promissed us in the "Auxteophonoscope" on Saturday. The machine will be found to be the newest and latest of its kind and in conjunction with the pictures a splendid selection of songs has been secured. Popular artistes like George Lashwood in the greatest of his successes, "Twilight," The Davis' Musical Clowns, the highest paid clowns on the British stage, La Saharet, the brilliant dancer who sent London, Paris and Berlin crazy "The Merry Widow" by the National Opera Company etc etc, From the above a selection will be given at each show, together with the popular 'Excelsior' Pictures. This should bring record business to the Theatre during the coming week and we are sure its patrons will be pleased with the novelty.

BOMBAY VETERINARY COLLEGE

Anniversary Celebration.

The anniversary celebration to commemorate the founding of the College was held on Wednesday at the Veterinary College, Parel, under the auspices of the Students' Association. The proceeding opened with an address from Mr. Hewlett, the President of the Association, in which he drew attention to the progress made in the equipment of the College in recent years, outlined the further improvements contemplated, which when completed will render the College, one of the best equipped Institutions of the kind in the world. He went on to state that the graduates of the Bombay Veterinary College had found a wide field for their labour, and had filled positions of trust not only in India but in Zanzibar, Aden, Burma, Ceylon and the Federated Malay States, while wherever they had gone they had performed their duties efficiently and well and had given general satisfaction to the employers. He also drew attention to the fact that Bombay graduates had done much to further the cause of veterinary education in India, pointing out that not only was the teaching staff of the Bombay Veterinary College mainly composed of Bombay graduates, but also that Bombay graduates held educational appointments in the Madras, Bengal, Lahore and Rangoon Veterinary College. The President's address was followed by the report of the committee of the Students' Association read by Mr. Eapen, which outlined the progress made during the year.

These proceedings were followed by a concert and a conjuring entertainment organised by the Students' Committee.

BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

JEEJEEBHOY FAMILY SUIT.

Claim for Ornaments.

SUIT DISMISSED WITH COSTS.

ON the Original Side of the Bombay High Court, yesterday, the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Beaman concluded the hearing of the suit brought by Mr. Jamsetji Rustomji Jamsetji against Awabai J. C. Jamsetji and another in which the plaintiff claimed to recover from the defendants certain ornaments for Rs. 1,35,000 and for the administration of the estate of Bai Motibai.

The Hon'ble Mr. Setalvad, Mr. Bahadurji and Mr. K. B. Dastur, instructed by Messrs. Jehangir, Gulabbhai and Billimoria, appeared for the plaintiff; the Hon'ble Mr. Strangman, Mr. F. Sorabji Talyarkhan and Mr. Rustom D. N. Wadia, instructed by Messrs. Kanga and Sayani, for the defendants.

Awabai Jamshedji, further cross-examined, by Mr. Setalwad, said Motibai's regard for Jamshedji lessened day by day and within a couple of years, it must have all vanished, so far as witness could judge from the deceased's behaviour. She did not say that Motibai did not at all care for the plaintiff. The deceased's letter of June 1902 shown to her, showed that Motibai had then great regard for the plaintiff. Some time between 1902 and 1903, Motibai underwent a slight operation for a tumour in the head. There were five pendants and two emerald clasps in the pearl necklaces. The special case for the necklace was of ancient workmanship. The necklace was presented to her mother who had in turn presented it to Motibai on the occasion of the marriage of witness' brother. The necklace was changed into a muff chain at the suggestion of her daughter, as that was the fashion of the day. It was not changed in order that it might not be recognised. Witness did not possess the alleged counterpart of the writing of 1900, relating to the gift. She never got it from Motibai's safe. After 1903, Motibai told witness that the plaintiff was becoming disrespectful towards her. Witness could not say whether Motibai wished to conceal the fact of her latest dispositions from the plaintiff.

Jerbai Behramji Rustomji, the second defendant, examined-in-chief, gave similar evidence to that of her mother the first defendant.

Cross examined, witness said she was not present when the inventory of the contents of Motibai's safe was made. Motibai and the plaintiff were not friendly during the latter part of her life. Witness noticed the change in 1906, when Motibai came to live in the big house.

Mr. Sorabji P. Kapadia, Assistant Editor, "Sanj Vartaman", deposed to publishing the gift of the necklace on the placard of the "Sanj Vartaman".

Mr. Byramji Rustomji Byramji, husband of the second defendant, produced a list of invitations on the occasion of his marriage to show that the plaintiff was invited. He had seen the notice of the gift placarded on the poster of the "Sanj Vartaman".

Mr. Talyarkhan closed his case, and arguments of counsel were heard, in the course of which Mr. Talyarkhan characterised the action as a merely speculative one.

THE JUDGMENT.

His Lordship then delivered an oral judgment which took him over an hour and a half and which lasted till after half-past six o'clock. In the course of his judgment, his Lordship said that the plaintiff in this case sued the two defendants as executrixes of the will of the late Bai Motibai to recover certain valuable jewellery, which he alleged Motibai gave to him absolutely on the 5th December, 1899, or the value thereof. It was now admitted that the suit being against the executrixes, it was only the amount of Motibai's estate which had come in the defendants' hands that could be made liable, assuming the plaintiff succeeded in establishing the facts on which that claim was based. The case presented many features of interest and some at least of serious difficulty. One of the reasons for that was that the defendant ladies had and could have no knowledge of the material facts which the plaintiff alleged against them and they had been, therefore, only able to repudiate the claim upon a general denial that they ever had any knowledge of it. On the other hand owing to the plaintiff having received this gift, as he alleged, in confidence and under a pledge of secrecy, he, too, had had to face many difficulties which would not ordinarily arise in proving cases of gift. It was said by his brother Fardoonji in the course of his evidence, that the keynote of the whole dealing was secrecy. Ever since his Lordship had been put in possession of the principal acts, he had given them his most anxious consideration, endeavouring not to omit any fact for or against the plaintiff's case. He had had to weigh very delicate considerations arising chiefly from the unusual character of the documentary evidence, which the plaintiff had laid before the Court. His Lordship had also had to estimate the bearing of many probabilities, antecedent, contemporaneous and subsequent and he confessed that even now after having the assistance of very eminent counsel, who had done their very best in very carefully advocating their clients' interest and in helping the Court to come to a right decision, he was in more doubt than he usually was when called upon to give judgment.

It was convenient at the outset, said his Lordship, to state the principal facts and events which made up the history on this claim. The plaintiff was adopted by Motibai in 1896 and in 1899, Motibai made her first will. In that will, she bequeathed all valuable jewellery which the plaintiff now sought to recover to him and also gave him fourteen annas' share of the residue. On the 5th December 1899, which was the plaintiff's birthday, the plaintiff alleged that Motibai gave with her own hands the whole of this valuable jewellery to him as a birthday present, and out and out as a final gift. He alleged that it was given to him in a box with the usual Chubb lock and he was entrusted with the key and he in fact did retain the jewels in his own possession and under his exclusive control from the 5th December, 1899, to 1st January, 1908. On or about that day, Motibai, left for Poona, and according to his story feeling some doubt whether this jewellery was safe in his custody took it from him to keep it under her own eye. Returning from Poona after a short time, the plaintiff alleged she again made over the box containing the jewels to him; and according to his story he seemed to have again had the exclusive dominion over and possession of this gift for some months. On the 21st March, 1900, the plaintiff alleged that Motibai dictated to him a writing, exhibit "C" in this case; in this writing, while reciting the fact of the gift of this jewellery, she stipulated that in the event of the plaintiff predeceasing her, it should all rebut to her and not pass to the plaintiff's brothers and sisters. He alleged that this writing was executed in a counter-part and while retaining the one, he had given the other to Motibai. About this time, Pirojbai, the mother of Motibai was anxious to show this jewellery to certain jewellers and appraisers of precious stones, apparently to sell them if favourable price was obtained and the plaintiff's case was that Motibai was thus constantly obliged to have recourse to him to obtain the jewellery, and that when Pirojbai sent for the jewels, Motibai thought it would be better if the plaintiff transferred the custody and possession of jewels to her. His Lordship here repeated that the plaintiff's case was that the gift was made in secrecy and with deliberate intention of concealing it from the defendants, and from the mother, sisters and nieces and it was on account of the secrecy, thus necessitated, that he was induced to hand back the jewellery to Motibai in May 1900. According to him what she apprehended was that her mother might some day find out that these jewels were not in Motibai's keeping and so discover the secret gift which the plaintiff alleged. Whatever might be the true reason, this fact was undisputed that in May 1900 Motibai regained possession and control of all jewellery and from that day to this, the plaintiff had never set his eyes upon it. In 1903, Motibai made her second will of a very different character from that of 1899. That time Jerbai was gaining in her affection and the will was very favourable to her; still a large portion of this jewellery mentioned as intended for him was again bequeathed to him. His Lordship should mention as a part of this history, that Motibai resided with the plaintiff from 1899 till 1906 and that they usually took meals together and were to all outward appearances on terms of intimacy and affection.

Turning back to the chronological order of events, his Lordship said that in 1905, it was part of the defendants' case that Motibai had sold one of these jewels now claimed by the plaintiff, to her mother Pirojbai. In May 1906, Pirojbai died leaving a considerable sum to Motibai. Upto the death of Motibai, Motibai was shown by the evidence laid before his Lordship to have been possessed of virtually nothing except her extremely valuable family jewels. About August 1906, Motibai ceased to live with the plaintiff and took her residence with her sisters and nieces. In January 1907, the plaintiff was given notice to quit and two other very significant things happened in that month. On the 3rd January, 1907, the plaintiff alleged that Motibai executed to him a second writing exhibit "E." In that, which was again dictated to him, so the plaintiff said, Motibai was made to acknowledge the fact of the gift and to assure the plaintiff that although the subject of it, namely, the jewels were in her safe, the plaintiff might confidently regard them as if they were his own. It was a startling commentary on this paper to find Motibai making the codicil of 1907 in the same month, cutting the plaintiff of all his share in the jewellery and leaving him no more than Rs. 3,000 or in the event of his marriage Rs. 5,000.

GIFT OF THE NECKLACE.

About this time Motibai's nice, the second defendant, became engaged to her present husband Mr. Byramji and in March 1908 she was married to him and on that occasion, Motibai made her the wedding present of a greater part of the valuable pearl neclace which the plaintiff alleged was given to him absolutely in December 1899. That gift had then taken the form of a muff chain, but there could be no question that that chain really did represent the greater part of the famous family necklace. It was the plaintiff's case that he did not attend Jerbai's wedding and that he knew nothing of the valuable present she received on her wedding occasion. In August, 1909, Motibai died having made her last will some twenty days before her death, which, so far as the plaintiff was concerned, reaffirmed the intentions expressed in the codicil of 1907. The probate of this will was taken out by the two defendants in the suit and the estate was proved at about Rs. 60,000.

His Lordship had already pointed out that the most valuable part of the jewellery was openly given to the second defendant on her wedding day in March 1908. There was also evidence to show beyond doubt how the rest of the jewellery was disposed of. So far then if that evidence was believed it followed that no part of the jewellery claimed by the plaintiff had come in the hands of the executrixes, and assuming that he could make good his claim in every respect that would have to be satisfied by the estate of Motibai, which had come in their hands. After the death of Motibai but never before, the plaintiff appeared to have thought of looking after his interest in the magnificent gift he had received ten years previously. He appeared to have taken legal advice early in January 1910 and at that time it was felt that he had very little chance of success. The suit was filed in August 1910, and even then the plaintiff had nothing on which to rely but his own word and that of his brother and his solicitor, Mr. Vimadalal, who gave his evidence with conspicuous candour and fairness. He made no secret that he earnestly impressed upon the plaintiff the necessity of securing most solid materials and more particularly he impressed upon him the desirability of producing the documentary evidence of this alleged gift. The plaintiff promised to do all in his power to recall the events incidental to the gift and a month later he had been so far successful as to remember the fact of making exhibit "C." It certainly seemed to his Lordship to be a most singular thing that the plaintiff should not have remembered "E" the second paper, of which importance was so vital to his case.

Continuing, his Lordship said he remembered about the second paper on the evening of the conference with counsel, but he did not remember where the two papers were and he had to take recourse to an astrologer who was then making a stir in Bombay under the name of Alastor, the mystic, and apparently for a fee of Rs. 15. Alastor told him he would find both the papers somewhere in books. Nothing happened until July 1911, when after the suit had been on board the plaintiff said he had found the two papers. The defendants were immediately called upon to admit, but they naturally declined to do so.

These then were the main facts, and the question for his Lordship to answer was whether the plaintiff had proved the gift he alleged to have made to him in December 1899.

In answering that question at very great length, his Lordship examined the minute circumstances surrounding the gift and said that the evidence of the plaintiff and his brother taken together made it clear beyond doubt that while they both contended that Motibai had given this jewellery as an out and out gift, neither he nor his brother ever believed that as long as Motibai lived, they had any right to restrain her from dealing with it as she pleased and that the whole of their conduct pointed conclusively to the plaintiff having been regarded as the intended recipient at some future time of this splendid gift.

His Lordship then went on to say that the position was seriously complicated by the production of the two papers "C" and "E" by the plaintiff, and discussing them at great length he said that these papers had been openly denounced by counsel for the defendants as impudent forgeries and certainly the circumstances in which they had come to light were so unusual, apart from the evidence drawn from the papers themselves, that they ought to be approached with great caution. His Lordship remarked that both the papers lent most easily to the damning criticism bestowed on them by counsel for the defendants and they pointed too plainly to the conclusion that the plaintiff managed to get the fly leaves of two old letters of Motibai with the signature at the top of one side of the paper for his purposes. After making the fullest allowances for the very able, ingenious and forcible arguments of Mr. Setalvad, his Lordship could not help feeling the greatest suspicion as to the genuineness of these documents.

After discussing other oral evidence of the plaintiff, his Lordship observed that on the other hand, there was the evidence of the highest quality and he did not hesitate to say that Awabai had throughout the whole of her long examination, spoken, as she had sworn to do, the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. The same might be said without reserve or qualification about the second defendant, Mrs. Byramji. So, in disposing of this case, his Lordship had to look to many probabilities, antecedent, contemporaneous and subsequent, and the conclusion his Lordship had come to after long and anxious thought was that the plaintiff had not proved to his Lordship's satisfaction the gift alleged to have been made to him by Motibai and the effect of that finding was that the plaintiff's suit was dismissed with all costs.

FINAL MORTGAGE DECREE.

ON the Original Side of the Bombay High Court, yesterday, before the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Beaman, there was called on the suit brought by Mr. R. D. Setna against Naranji Dwarkadass and Gordhandass G. Teizpal and three others for a decree absolute.

Mr. Setalwad, holding Mr. Desai's brief, appeared for the plaintiff, who was the receiver of the estate of one Gordhandass Sunderdass, the first mortgagee in the suit; Mr. F. Sorabji Talyarkhan appeared for defendants 3 to 5, who were the second mortgagees.

Mr. Setalwad said his client obtained a decree for Rs. 48,140 with interest and costs against the first two defendants in December last. Notice had been given to the parties of this application, which was necessitated as the defendants had paid nothing.

His Lordship passed a decree absolute for the sale of the properties mortgaged. Mr. Taleyarkhan's client's claim was also allowed. The costs of the mortgagees were ordered to be added to the mortgage debt.

CONVICTIONS CONFIRMED.

ON the Appellate Side of the Bombay High Court, yesterday, the Hon'ble Justice Sir Narayan G. Chandawarkar and the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Hayward disposed of the appeal of Lala Tribhovan and another, who were convicted by Mr. M. B. Tyebji, Sessions Judge of Broach, of robbery and going armed without a license, and sentenced the first to twelve and the second to five years' rigorous imprisonment.

The prosecution case was that in March last, the two accused armed with pistols and bill-hooks, visited the village of Goladra. The first accused went to the house of one Chhotalal, and said he was an outlaw and demanded Rs. 50 from each of the Banias of the village. Chhotalal, afraid as he was gave him Rs. 45. The two accused then went to another house and finding it locked, they set fire to it. The neighbours gathered, but none dared to oppose them. Then they went to a neighbouring village, where they were arrested.

Agreeing with the assessors the Sessions Judge convicted the accused and sentenced them as above stated.

Their Lordships dismissed the appeal.

TRICUMDASS MISFEASANCE CASE.

Gordhandass Khatao Sued.

ON the Original Side of the Bombay High Court, yesterday, the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Macleod concluded the hearing of the suit brought by the Tricumdass Mills in liquidation against Gordhandass Khatao and another to recover Rs. 3,42,673 with interest and costs.

Mr. M. R. Jardine and the Hon'ble Mr. M. A. Jinnah, instructed by Messrs. Bhaishankar, Kanga and Ghirdharlal, appeared for the plaintiffs; Mr. B. J. Desai, with the Hon'ble the Advocate-General and the Hon'ble Mr. C. H. Setalvad, instructed by Messrs. Little and Company, represented the first defendant; the second defendant was absent.

After recording further evidence of Mr. Gordhandass Khatao and the evidence of his munim as well and after hearing arguments of counsel, his Lordship reserved judgment.

POLICE COURTS.

NOTORIOUS BURGLARS.

At the Mazagaon Police Court, yesterday, before Rao Bahadur C. H. Setalvad, Inspector De Burgh charged Nanabhoy Dinshaw alias Nanamasa, with being an habitual burglar, thief, and receiver of stolen property, and with being so dangerous as to render his being at large without security, hazardous to the public.

Inspector De Burgh, in his information, stated that the accused was a reputed thief, house-breaker and receiver of stolen property, and had been wandering about Bombay for the last six weeks without employment. He had been seen talking to people of no standing. The deponent had his movements watched, and from enquiries found that he had been seen ordering and purchasing implements for house-breaking. Three other persons named Rama Babaji, Veerji Guga and Jiwan Hurree, had associated with the accused and from their movements it appeared that they all four had been arranging to commit an offence.

Mr. De Burgh also placed the three above named Hindus, before the Magistrate and charged them with the same offence, and prayed that all four accused be bound over and be ordered to furnish sureties for good behaviour.

Mr. DeBurgh put in previous convictions recorded against Nanamasa and Rama.

His Worship observed that it appeared to him that Nanabhoy was a reputed and habitual thief, house-breaker and receiver of stolen propery and had been roaming about for the last six weeks without employment. The Court also found that he had been lately ordering and purchasing implements for house-breaking, and the other three accused had been associating with Nanamasa. His Worship held that the four accused were such dangerous and desperate characters so as to render their being at large without security hazardous to the public. His Worship called upon Nanamasa to enter into his own bond in the sum of Rs. 500, and to furnish one surety in the like amount for his good behaviour for a period of one year. The three Hindu accused were asked to show cause, why they should not be bound over in the sum of Rs. 200 with one surety for the like amount each.

Nanamasa said that he did not wish this case to go on in this Court and that he wished to be tried by some other Magistrate.

The three Hindu accused said they had no objection to be tried by that Court.

His Worship adjourned the hearing pending the disposal by the Chief Presidency Magistrate, of the application of Nanamasa for the transfer of the case.

THEFT FROM THE DINING-CAR.

At the Esplanade Police Court, yesterday, before Mr. A. H. Aston, Inspector Sorabji Nowroji of the G. I. P. Railway Police, charged a Goan named George Lewis alias John Lewis with the theft of three brass locks of the value of Rs. 35 from a dining-car of the G. I. P. Railway. It appeared in the evidence that the car was lying yesterday at the yard at Beri Bunder when the accused went there and stole the locks. He was at once arrested by the Police. When he was questioned, he told the police he was employed as a waiter. On enquiry his statement was found to be false and the accused was placed before the Magistrate. He admitted his previous conviction. The Magistrate held on the evidence that the accused was guilty and sentenced him to one year's rigorous imprisonment.

THEFT BY A SOLDIER.

At the Esplanade Police Court, yesterday, before Mr. A. H. S. Aston, Chief Presidency Magistrate, Inspector Spiers charged a soldier, George Singleton, of the Lahore Battery, who is now on leave in Bombay, with the theft of two German silver soap boxes of the value of Rs. 2 8-0. The complainant in the case is one Mani Shanker, who is the owner of a dispensary at Sitaram building, Crawford Market. The case for the prosecution was that the accused went over to the complainant's dispensary yesterday morning at 8 a m, and asked for soap boxes. Complainant showed him a variety of boxes, out of which the accused selected two German silver boxes and asked at what price they were sold. Without waiting even for an answer and taking advantage of the fact that the complainant had gone to the other end of the dispensary, the accused bolted away with the boxes in question. Complainant followed and ran after him. Accused was arrested by the police and placed before the Magistrate. He pleaded guilty. The Magistrate sentenced the accused to one day's imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 5, or in default three days' rigorous imprisonment.

FIRE AT CAVEL.

AN alarm of fire, raised from a ground floor structure situated in one of the narrowest lanes in Cavel at about half-past two o'clock, yesterday afternoon, was the cause of considerable confusion in that locality. The house was divided into two compartments, one of which was occupied by an Irani as a tea shop, and the other was utilized as a boarding-house by Goanese. The lane in which the house was situated is so norrow that even two men cannot walk abreast in it without difficulty. On account of the narrowness of the lane and the close proximity of dwelling houses the confusion and excitement created were considerable. The fire engines from Bhuleshwer, Babula Tank Gowalia Tank and Byculla arrived promptly, but it was impossible to take even the Bhuleshwer manual near the burning house. A line of hose connected with an hydrant on Girgaum road was run into the lane. The building on which the fire originated was mostly built of wood and being very old, by the time the fire engines arrived, the whole structure was enveloped in flames. Finding it impossible to save the burning building, the Fire Brigade directed their energies to preventing the flames from spreading to the adjoining and opposite houses. In this they succeeded and the fire was got under in about half an hour.

Mr. S. M. Edwardes, Commissioner, and Mr. F. M. Gadney, Deputy Commissioner of Police; Superintendent Priestley and other Police officers were on the spot and assisted the Fire Brigade.

The shop was owned by Aspandiar Ardeshir Irani who it has been alleged was lighting a primus stove which flared up and set fire to the place.

The damage is estimated at about Rs. 2,000.

FATAL RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

Mr. E. T. Lambert, the Coroner, held an inquest at the G. T. Hospital, yesterday, touching the death of Sheikh Kadarbux Nahoo, a Mahomedan, aged thirty. The deceased worked as a flagman on an engine in the New Docks. At 5-30 p.m., on Wednesday last, the engine was coming on to a load of sixteen waggons and when it came to within two feet of them, the deceased, who was on the engine got down. He went to turn down the hook of the waggon to the nearest engine to couple it with it. There was another engine at the other end of the line of sixteen waggons. There was a slight incline on the line and when the waggons were being unhooked from the engine at the far end, they moved a little and the deceased was jammed between his engine and the waggon he was coupling it. He cried out when the engine was moved a little, and the deceased fell on the road. He complained of pain in the chest and was removed to the Goculdas Tejpal Hospital, where he died the same night. A verdict of accidental death was recorded.

CHINESE POVERTY.

STUDENTS of the "Yellow Peril" will find much instruction in a paper, which Mr. E. A. Ross, Professor of Sociology in the University of Wisconsin contributes to the "Century" magazine. In it he explains how it is the Chinaman overruns the world, and foretells that he will not only continue to do so, but that his emigration will greatly increase within a short period of time. Even with the aid of scientific agriculture it is impossible to make the crop of China find its ever-growing population. It must emigrate or starve. In the view of Professor Ross, it is the outward thrust of surplus Japanese that is to-day producing dramatic political results in Korea and Manchuria. In forty or fifty years there will come a powerful outward thrust of surplus Chinese on ten times this scale. With a third of the adults able to read, with daily newspapers thrilling the remotest village with tidings of the great world, eighteen provinces will be pouring forth emigrants instead of two. To Mexico, Central and South America, South-eastern Asia, Asia Minor, Africa and even Europe, the black-haired bread-seekers will stream—that is the prophecy. And then "What shall we do with the Chinese?" from being in turn a Californian, an Australian, a Canadian and a South African question, will become a world question—in which the humanitarian aspect may be lost sight of. At the present moment the bulk of the Chinese people are only half-fed. Every inch of ground is cultivated. There is neither room for a play-ground nor a village green and in many places not even enough to pitch a tent. No natural resource is too trifling to be turned to account. "The sea is raked and strained for edible plunder. Sea-weed and kelp have a place in the larder. Great quantities of shell-fish, no bigger than one's finger nail, are opened and made to yield a food that finds its way far inland. The fungus which springs up in the grass after a rain is eaten. Fried sweet potato-vines furnish the poor man's table. The road-side ditches are bailed out for the sake of fishes no bigger than one's finger; no weed or stalk escapes the bamboo rake of the autumnal fuel-gatherer. The grass tufts on the rough slopes are dug up to the roots. The sickle reaps the grain close to the ground, for straw and chaff are needed to burn under the rice-kettle. The leaves of the trees are a crop to be carefully gathered."

Chinese poverty is simply indescribable. Frugal they must be; resourceful too or else they would perish. The cuisine of the Chinese is as remarkable as it is varied. Silkworms are eaten after the cocoon has been unwound. After their life's work is done, horses, donkeys, mules and camels become butcher's meat. The cow or pig which has died a natural death is not disdained. Mr. Ross tells us of a friend of his who had always let his cook dispose of a dead calf—after which his calves always died. Finally he saturated the carcass of the calf with carbolic acid and made the cook bury it. Thereafter his calves lived. In Canton rats and cats are dressed and exposed for sale. Scenting a possible opening for a tannery, the Governor of Hongkong once set afoot an inquiry as to what became of the skins of the immemorable pigs slaughtered in the Colony. He learned that they were all made up as "marine delicacies" and sold among the Chinese. At another time he was on the point of ordering the extermination of stray dogs which harassed the Sikh policemen in the performance of their duties. He found that such an act would interfere with the food of the people. Haunted by the fear of starving men spend themselves recklessly for the sake of a wage. It is true, writes Professor Ross, that the Chinese are yet in the handicrafts stage and the artisans one sees busy on their own account in the little workshops along the street go their own pace. The smiths in iron, tin, copper, brass and silver, the carvers of ivory, amber, tortoise-shell, onyx, and jade, the workers in wood, rattan, lacquer, wax and feathers, the weavers of linen, cotton and silk, all seem, despite their long hours, less breathless and driven, less prodigal in their expenditure of energy than many of the operatives in our machine industries, who feel the spur of piece-work, team-work and "speeding up." Coolies live rarely beyond forty-five or fifty years of age. The term of service of a chair-bearer is eight years, that of a rickshaw coolie four and for the rest of his life he is an invalid.

Yet the population increases at a tremendous rate. It is a Chinaman's first concern to assure the succession in the male line. He only covets a number of sons and to see them settled as soon as possible. There is none of the western feeling that a young man should not marry until he can support a family. And according to Professor Ross, this wholesome check on reproduction seems absolutely necessary. By his showing, in China the generations come at least a third closer together than in the West. "Even if their average family were no larger than ours they can outbreed us, for they get in four generations while we are rearing three. But their families are larger because their production of children is not affected by certain conditions which weigh with us." Chinaman rely on their sons to keep them when they have grown old, so a man is envied for the number of descendants in the male line. All things conspire together to encourage the Chinese to multiply freely without heed to the economic prospect. They never give a thought to the fact that their country can never support them and we doubt if they will accept Professor Ross's warning that over population spells privation and drudgery and means a life averaging about fifteen years shorter than ours. As sanitation extends life will be prolonged but the food supply cannot be, hence the tide of emigration will continue to flow. Recent investigations discovered large colonies of them in English ports where they marry with English girls and has shown that the stream of emigration from China has flown in all manner of unexpected directions. Daily the problem becomes more complex and more difficult of solution, but the Chinaman himself will do nothing to solve it. He will go wherever he may in search of his necessary "chow."

PELAGIC SEALING. A BRIEF but interesting review of the causes for the recent international agreement upon pelagic sealing is published by the Times. They are nothing less than the urgent necessity of suspending the pelagic catches with the sole object of preventing the complete extermination of the herds. Consequently the immunity from danger at sea which the fur-bearing seal will now enjoy for the next fifteen years will save one of the most beautiful and intelligent of creatures from extirpation. Sealing as it is conducted at sea is far more destructive than the operations which take place on land. Not only that, but pelagic sealing is at the same time wasteful and cruel. It means the slaughter of a large number of cows, which involves the starvation of their calves and the loss of numbers of animals, which sink or get away wounded. It has accounted for the reduction of the herds from about two millions in 1882, to less than two hundred thousand at the present day. In 1884, 100,000 skins were taken by this means, in 1894, 62,000 and if the catch has decreased since then it is a fact that since 1890 the pelagic sealer has secured twice as many skins as have been secured on land. The sealers fire at the seals from small boats, making no distinction between males and females; some are killed and sink immediately, others are fatally wounded, but escape before they die. It is stated that for each skin taken probably four seals are killed and lost. Moreover, since the female seal on her way to and from the feeding ground is the favourite prey, it follows that 80 per cent. of the whole pelagic catch are females. It is estimated that the pelagic catch of 27,216 skins in 1907 represented a loss to the herd of upwards of 75,000 animals. The only places where the northern fur-seal is still found in any numbers are the Pribeloff and Commander Islands in the Behring Sea, the former being American and the latter Russian territory. Other herds formerly existed at Robbin Island and in the Kuril Archipelago, both of which belong to Japan, but these have been almost entirely wiped out. It is believed, however, that under the benefit of the sealing agreement, and under Government protection the small remnant that remain may be nursed back to former numbers.

JAMKHANDI. IN view of the possibilities of scarcity, which have to be faced this season, it must be a matter of much satisfaction to the Chief and officials of Jamkhandi, a little State of 524 square miles, which lies principally in the Belgaum and Bijapur districts of the Presidency, that last year was one which left the cultivators in a condition of unusual prosperity. From the annual administration report one finds that a large increase in the area of cultivation has since occurred, due entirely to the improved circumstances of the people. Out of about 4,722 acres of waste land available for cultivation, 1,150 acres were taken up, compared with 622 acres last year, and only 28 acres were relinquished. Land revenue was recovered with ease and a considerable amount of arrears was paid off. A noteworthy feature of the report is that there were no applicatsons for, and therefore no grants of tagai, and so should it unhappily be needed, there should be so much the more money available for relief measures. Meantime the State has shown its practical interest in the welfare of its agriculturists by the establishment during last year of a small experimental farm of about 15 acres near the town of Jamkhandi. On this, although experiments with wheat and jowari proved valueless, successful results were obtained from a sowing of Broach cotton. This gave a cash return equal to nearly three times the amount secured from local cotton, and obviously general introduction would be very desirable. A number of cultivators from the neighbouring villages were shown the experimental crop and it was hoped that some of them would take it up on their own land. That the educational needs of the people also receive constant attention may be gathered from the fact that during the year two additional schools were opened and there was an increase of nearly four hundred in the total number of pupils. It is also noteworthy that an increase is reported in the average attendance at most of the schools.

COFFEE TRADE OF INDIA. WHILE so many people in India have to view the outlook with grave concern, the coffee planters of Southern India are a fortunate exception, for whom the immediate future seems to hold bright things. The past season has generally been a very favourable one, and prospects have a tendency to improve. The coffee crop of Brazil is, of course, the principal determining factor in the coffee world and its total crop for the twelve months ending June 30th was a short one, amounting to about 620,470 tons only. How low a figure this really is can be judged by the fact that Brazil's record production in 1906-7 amounted to 1,154,880 tons, while annually some 800,000 tons of Brazilian coffee are required for the world's consumption. The result is that the world's visible supply of coffee on the 1st of last month was only 652,000 tons, and with the exception of 1906, when it was rather below 600,000 tons, it is less than it has been for ten years. The deliveries, in Europe and the United States last year, were rather less than during the preceding four years, but this was the natural result of the high prices which have ruled for the last nine or ten months. Brazil's next crop is not expected to exceed 825,000 tons, and is likely also to be a late one. There is thus good reason to believe that prices will go still higher in the autumn. The Madras Mail, in a review of the situation, mentions the opinion, which is held in some quarters, that the rise has been engineered by holders of Brazilian coffee to frighten distributors into buying up the old stock, before supplies of the new crop begin to come in freely. It adds, however, that a cautious estimate of the market consider that there are fair chances of further improvement.

Of the total number 59 died from fevers, 21, plague; 3, small-pox; 1, measles; 2, cholera; 3, leprosy; 35, phthisis; 28, diseases of the nervous system; 135, affections of the respiratory organs; 50, diarrhœa; 13, dysentery; 22, still-born; 23, old age and debility; and 15, accidents and violence. AN interesting archæological discovery of what is believed to be Horace's Sabine villa has been made in the neighbourhood of Pericles in the Sabine hills. Some peasants while digging came across mosaic pavements, and Count Negri was sent by the Government to inspect the discovery. Count Negri has come to the conclusion that the remains are a Roman villa of the early Augustian period. The ruins are situated on the banks of the little River Licenza and the "fons bandusiæ" to which one of Horace's odes is dedicated Count Negri believes he had discovered Horace's "Sabine Farm," the situation of which has always been in doubt among archæologists. Further excavations are being carried out.

WOMEN'S INTERESTS.

(FROM OUR LADY CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, JULY 14.

THE ROYAL VISIT TO IRELAND.

A ROYAL Irish welcome, in the exuberance and spontaneity of which party and creed were completely forgotten, was accorded to the King and Queen on Saturday, when, accompanied by the Prince of Wales and Princess Mary, they landed from the royal yacht at Kingstown and drove through miles of decorated streets lined by crowds of cheering Irish people of every rank and class It was a personal triumph for the King. Despite the overpowering heat of Saturday, the streets were thronged from early morning to long past midnight and the greatest order prevailed. Society flocked into the cheery streets at night to see the illuminations, while others went to Kingstown to admire the beautifully illuminated fleet. On Saturday morning, people were up betimes in order to reach their destinations to see the royal procession pass, and windows and balconies were crowded. In the afternoon all fashionable Dublin went to the Phœnix Park races, and seldom has the pretty racecourse seen such a smart attendance. The King and Queen did not arrive on the scene until four o'clock, and they met with a most extraordinarily enthusiastic reception as they alighted from their carriage. The Queen wore a dress of sea-green poplin, of Irish manufacture, and a hat trimmed with white feathers. The King wore ordinary morning dress, with a white top hat, minus a black band, and in his buttonhole was a white carnation, evidently his Majesty's favourite flower, as he seldom appears without it. The Duchess of Devonshire and Lady Shaftesbury were in attendance on the Queen, the former wearing white, with touches of black, and Lady Shaftesbury royal blue satin with a flower-trimmed toque. The sun's glare was so fierce that people crowded together under the trees in the paddock, to the heart of the poorest part of Dublin, drove the King and Queen, and there, in a bare hall, watched 500 little slum children, ragged, mostly barefooted, all very poor, dance and sing and play games. To several of the children they talked. One tiny creature named Lily Lawlor won their hearts The Queen told her she was a lovely little dancer. "Do you like coming here to play?" her Majesty asked "Yes, Miss," was the mite's reply. Monday was a crowded day for their Majesties, including the reception of addresses, a levee, the visit by the Queen to the Coombe Hospital, a drive to Leopardstown Races, a state banquet in the evening, and the investiture of Lord Kitchener and Lord Shaftesbury with the Order of St. Patrick. The Queen went to a very poor part of Dublin to visit the Coombe Hospital for Women. A little incident touched her deeply. While she was in the hospital, a woman in a house just across the narrow street waved a flag. The Queen noticed it and walked to the window of the ward and gave her a special bow of thanks all to herself. In the wards, her Majesty spoke to several of the patients, and noticed particularly two pairs of very young twins, each pair named George and Mary. Dr. Michael Gibson, who took her round, was struck by her knowledge of hospital equipment and the closeness with which she observed all the arrangements. She was especially pleased with the lightness and airiness of the whole place. Coming away she passed in review a line of fresh-faced Irish nurses. One of them carried a tiny baby born on Coronation Day and named Georgina Mary. The Queen was amused at being presented with a bouquet on behalf of this unconscious infant.

AT LEOPARDSTOWN RACES.

Their Majesties drove with an escort of 1st Life Guards right up the course amidst the utmost enthusiasm. The Queen wore a creamy yellow lace dress, and hat trimmed with parted pink feathers. Scenes of brilliant pageantry marked the last day of the visit of the King and Queen to Dublin, Wednesday, under a tropical sun, his Majesty held a review of over 16,000 soldiers and sailors, which provided just such a spectacle of military pomp and splendour as filled with enthusiasm the thousands of Irish people who crowded to Phœnix Park. The King and Queen's garden party at the Viceregal Lodge, Dublin, on Wednesday, was favoured with splendid weather. Not a cloud was to be seen throughout the day, and the heat was intense. The Queen wore a cream-coloured dress, with pale blue feathers in her hat.

A serious accident happened on the way to the review. A woman getting off a street car either stepped over a match alight or touched a live wire. In a second her dress was ablaze and she was badly burnt. The Queen sent to the hospital to ask how she was.

THE THEATRE.

There is evidently a new excuse for attending every performance at the different Theatres, we now go until we see a hat that we think would exactly suit us, we then proceed to find out the milliner. The Princess August Wilhelm, wife of the Kaiser's fourth son, attended a performance of "The Chaste Suzanne," a popular operetta, when she took a great fancy to a hat of enormous proportions worn by Fraulein von Petrasz, the leading lady. The Princess summoned the singer to the royal box, and, after congratulating her on the performance, said that what she principally wanted to know was the name of the actress's milliner.

FASHION AND THE FRENCH WOMAN.

French women of to-day are no longer the perfect dressers they were of old. The women of to-day in Paris are as often as not over-dressed; others lack the individuality, the wonderful sense of their own personality, which formerly distinguished Parisian women. This seems to be passing away. Everyone seems bent upon dressing to order—not as best suits their style, but in accordance with the craze of the hour.

WOMEN NEEDED.

Although Englishwomen have every reason to feel flattered by that part of Lord Robert Cecil's speech before the Colonial Conference in which he described them as "not only the most beautiful but the best of all the women in the world," there was another part of the speech which perhaps may not please them quite so much. Referring to the excess in the female population here and the excess of the male population in our Overseas Dominions, Lord Robert said that the obvious remedy was to export the surplus women to those parts of the Empire which stood in need of the commodity. Now this is all right in the theory, but in practice women cannot be treated as a commodity. The fact that women are urgently needed in Canada, does not make it desirable to ship them there almost as if they were slaves or cattle. I am sure no one means to suggest anything derogatory to the self-respect of Englishwomen when such a recommendation is made, but it sounds as if it might work out like that.

A NEW GAME.

A novel feature was introduced into our English presentment of the time-honoured gymkhana when at the Ranelagh Club, some of the Indian visitors over here for the Coronation took part in the events of the afternoon. A Sikh Quoit Competition excited immense interest, and the deadly precision with which the discs were thrown looked sufficiently alarming. The trial of skill was to cut through the paper poles, four of which stood in a row some six feet high, with the knife-edge rings of steel with which the competitors were supplied. The rings were sent through the air in curved flights, and when the aim was true, they cut through the pole and went on their way, scarcely feeling the impact. From one of these rings some Sikhs who were watching the exhibition of their countrymen's skill had a narrow escape.

A GARDEN PARTY.

Mrs. Ratan Tata gave a delightful garden party at York House, Twickenham, last week, and the weather being fine, there was a great crowd, and the garden presented a picturesque scene. The object of the party was to meet the Indian Princes still in town after the Coronation, and the beautiful robes worn by some of the Orientals made a charming effect, almost every colour of the rainbow appearing in their graceful draperies. The drawing-room was set apart for them, but many preferred to sit with the other guest in the sunken garden, where tea was set out and the band of the 7th Hussars played. In the museum, where the Duke of Orlean's wonderful jungle collection was formerly housed and which is now hung with Eastern embroideries, a concert was given in which well-known singers took part. The house is an interesting one, and has a wonderful garden. In a remote part the visitor comes upon a waterfall fountain that is most effective. There is a terrace overlooking the river, and boats were to be had for the asking; but most of the guests strolled about and talked to their friends. Mrs. Ratan Tata looked graceful in pale pink silk draperies and she wore a string of beautiful pearls.

SOCIETY IN PHŒNIX PARK.

Never has the Phœnix Park Race Club been attended by a more brilliant assemblage than that which gathered there on Saturday afternoon in honour of the visit of the King and Queen to the pretty racecourse. Great preparations had been going on for days past to make the lawn and stand look attractive, and the little chalet set apart for the use of their Majesties and the Duke of Connaught was really beautifully decorated with flowers. Their Majesties arrived about four o'clock. The Queen was attired in Irish poplin of a pale shade of pea green, which was trimmed with some beautiful Irish lace. In the carriage following the King and Queen were seated the Duchess of Devonshire and the Countess of Shaftesbury. The Duchess of Devonshire wore a distinctive toilette of white silk ninon, with black beaded trimming on the bodice. She had a white hat adorned with white feathers. The Countess of Shaftesbury appeared to advantage in a gown of sapphire-blue satin, trimmed with black and white striped satin. The Duke of Connaught arrived shortly before their Majesties having motored from the Royal Hospital, Kilmainham, with his host and hostess, General the Hon. Sir Neville and Lady Lyttelton. Beautiful toilettes were to be seen on all sides. The Duchess of Abercorn, who is in mourning this season, had a gown of black crepon and lace, with a black toque and feathers. Her daughter, Lady Alexandra Hamilton, was in a grey and black striped dress, with a black and white hat. The Duchess of St. Albans was gowned in black satin, and also wore a black and white toque. The Marchioness of Londonderry, who was escorted by her husband, wore a handsome toilette of greyish blue satin charmeuse and a flower-trimmed hat. The Marquis of Waterford was accompanied by the Marchioness of Waterford in black, with touches of pale blue, and the Earl of Tyrone, who wore an Eton suit. The Marchioness of Ormonde had a becoming costume of platinum-coloured satin charmeuse, and a toque to match, and her younger daughter, Lady Constance Butler, was wearing black and white striped foulard. One of the most admired toilettes was that worn by the Countess of Granard, composed of buisquit-coloured lace, with a long, hanging cloak of turquoise blue satin. By her side, for some time, sat the Marchioness of Hamilton, wearing black and white striped foulard with a smart, black toque. Close at hand were the Countess of Brogheda and the Countess of Portarlington, the former wearing a lovely gown of ivory satin charmeuse, and a large leghorn hat wreathed with the palest pink roses. The Countess of Portarlington chose a gown of palest cinnamon and black flowered muslin, with a hat trimmed with cinnamon colour ostrich feathers. The Countess of Limerick, now happily recovered from her long and serious illness, wore a beautiful gown of simple muslin, with a hat to match, trimmed with wide crimson flounces. Her daughter, Lady Victoria Pery, one of the pretty debutantes of the year, was in white and black, with a becoming shady hat of straw and chiffon. The Countess of Wicklow wore a beige gown, with touches here and there of pale lavender satin. The Countess of Erne was a stately figure in a coat and skirt of heliotrope shotcanvas, with a toque to match. The Countess of Lanesborough, and her daughter, Lady Eileen Butler, were much noticed, the former wearing a cool looking dress of green linen, and the latter beflowered muslin and a very large hat. The Countess of Arran was seen to advantage in a coat and skirt of grey satin and a white hat with feathers and Lady Oranmore and Browne wore an embroidered biscuits-coloured dress. The Countess of Rosse looked charming in white, embroidered in deep cherry colour, her toque being trimmed in the same shade. Viscountess Powerscourt chose a costume of pale moonlight-blue embroidered muslin, and for a time she was seated by the side of the Countess of Kingston, who appeared in a white embroidered gown and a large straw hat wreathed with light yellow poppies. Lady Leucha Warner's white embroidered costume and little coatee of dark blue satin were quite chic. Others of distinction to be seen at this very enjoyable meeting included the Earl of Shrewsbury, Count Albert Mensdorff-Pouilly-Dietrichstein, the Earl of Drogheda, the Earl of Bandon, the Earl of Lanesborough, the Countess of Fingall and Lady Mary Plunkett, the Earl of Granard, the Earl of Rosse, Earl and Countess Fitzwilliam, the Countess of Altamont and the Ladies Browne, Viscount and Viscountess Midelton, the Earl and Countess of Kerry, Lord and Lady Barrymore (the latter attired in pale green muslin), Lord Marcus Beresford, Admiral the Lord Charles Beresford, Lady Margaret and Lady Eva Forbes, the Dowager Countess of Donoughmore, Sir John and Lady Anott (the latter wearing a successful black and white gown with a small toque to match), Sir Anthony and Lady Weldon; the Earl of Enniskillen, Viscount and Viscountess Cole, the Earl of Meath, Mr. and Lady Kathleen Lindsay, Lady Annettee La Touche, the Hon. Lady Lyttelton and her son-in-law Mr. Arthur Grenfell, the Hon. Walter and Lady Evelyn Guinness. Viscount Dunsannon, Colonel Hall Walker, Colonel the Hon. Henry and Mrs. Yarde-Buller, Lord John Hamilton, Lord Arthur Hay, the Hon. Annie and the Hon. Ellen O'Brien, Mr. Porter Porter, Mr. Packe Beresford, and a great many others.

SIR JOHN THOMAS ROBERTS, Carnarvon's Mayor and new knight, has been (writes one who knows him) the busiest men in the borough for several years. By profession a solicitor, he has been a leading police court advocate, and is now clerk to the Carnarvonshire County Council, and how he has coped (with consistent success) with his multifarious duties and been at the same time the most active member of the Town Council has been one of Carnarvon's standing mysteries. Like Mr. Lloyd George—for whom in bygone years he conducted election campaigns—he is short but energy incarnate, and he is most unhappy, perhaps, when on a formal occasion he is under the necessity of wearing gloves and a greatcoat. He is happiest—or at least was—when, in overalls and spanner in hand, he escapes to his engine-room and sets the wheels a-whirring in the production of electricity for his house. It is a peculiar merit in Carnarvon to be a lad of the town, and the new knight fulfils this in the best sense. Not only is the Major, a native, but he typifies that union of Welsh sentiment and the progressive spirit which is Carnarvon's main characteristic.

THE VETO BILL CRISIS.

MOTIONS OF CENSURE IN BOTH HOUSES.

Mr. Balfour's Adroitness.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, AUGUST 2.

Lord Lansdowne, on behalf of Lord Curzon, has given notice that he will move, next Tuesday in the House of Lords, a vote of censure upon the Government. The terms of the motion are the same as that of which Mr. Balfour has given notice.

LONDON, AUGUST 3.

The Unionist papers unanimously welcome Mr. Balfour's motion, which the Liberals characterise as an adroit move, intended to reunite the party. The "no-surrenderers" have postponed the issue of their manifesto, which, they consider, might be regarded as a reflection on Mr. Balfour.

Mr. Asquith did not attend the House of Commons yesterday, and cancelled his engagements in the evening. He is suffering from a slight throat affection.

LATER.

It appears that a meeting between Mr. Balfour and the "No Surrenderites" took place yesterday at the request of the latter. Mr. Balfour's advice was asked as to the best means of procedure, and the notices of the vote of censure were the outcome.

The papers are drawing up a list of peers, who support the policy of Lord Halsbury. Their lists vary from 68 to 75, while the Liberals publish names of 64 peers, whom they regard as certainties, and 28 "probables," though these latter have not declared their policy.

THE MOROCCAN SITUATION.

LONDON, AUGUST 2.

The Moorish authorities have expelled from Agadir Mr. Ostler, correspondent of the Daily Express, and another Englishman. A message to the Express from Tangier states that the commander of the "Berlin" offered to intercede on Mr. Ostler's behalf, but the offer was declined.

LONDON, AUGUST 3.

Impatience is manifested in Paris at the continued silence, regarding the progress of the conversations between France and Germany, while there is an increasing agitation in Berlin against the cession of Togoland in exchange for a portion of the French Congo. Authoritative opinion in both capitals, however, anticipates a satisfactory diplomatic solution.

KHULNA DACOITY CASE.

Further Question in the House.

LONDON, AUGUST 2.

In the House of Lords, to-day, Lord Wynford again raised the Khulna dacoity case.

Lord Morley said that in view of the prolonged proceedings in recent dacoity cases, which were most inadvisable for many reasons, the Government of India had very sensibly decided upon the conditional release of the accused. The decision had been openly conveyed to the accused by Mr. Sinha, to whom Lord Morley paid a warm tribute. The result of the action of the Government of India, Lord Morley added, was most satisfactory.

THE DOCKERS' STRIKE.

P. and O. Liners held up at Antwerp.

PROSPECT OF SERIOUS SPREAD OF DISPUTE.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, AUGUST 3.

It is stated that the P. and O. liners, which were sent to Antwerp on account of the strike in London, have been held up there owing to the Antwerp dockers co-operating with the London men, and refusing to handle the cargo.

At a meeting of the British India Company's men, it was resolved to seek admission into the Dockers' Union.

The stevedores, employed by the P. and O. Company at Tilbury, resumed work yesterday pending the settlement of their demands. Their chief claim is for the recognition of the Stevedores' Union.

LONDON, AUGUST 3.

At a mass meeting of the London dockers, it was resolved to call a general strike. It is expected that 20,000 men will be idle to-day. The Unions abroad have been asked to boycott ships from London. LONDON, AUGUST 3.

A verdict of wilful murder has been returned in the case of the Anglo-Indian, Brough Simpson, who, with his wife, was found dead in his lodgings at Earl's Court, and of suicide afterwards, while temporarily insane.

The Secretary of Barsi Light Railway Company gave evidence that the deceased had been worried about a charge of accepting a bribe from a contractor, which charge he denied.

The Company accepted his statement and sent out instructions to a solicitor in India to probe the matter to the bottom. They had unbounded confidence in Mr. Simpson's integrity. It was further stated in the evidence that Simpson had had great trouble with coolies. The evidence showed that the couple were most affectionate.

FORLORN RUSSIAN GIRL.

Pathetic Story of Misery.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

CALCUTTA, AUGUST 3.

A pathetic story was told to the Commissioner of Police by Sonia Sophie Lewin, a beautiful young Russian girl, not more than seventeen, who reached Calcutta two days ago in a destitute condition having been robbed and deserted at Port Said by a man who promised her a life of happiness. Falling into the clutches at Bombay of one of the female vulture of the street, the little creature was forced into a life of shame. The woman who is harbouring her and the one who brought her down to Calcutta also appeared before the Commissioner of Police who after enquiring into the facts passed and order to the effect that the girl should be sent home within a period of fourteen days.

THE Mahsraja of Darbhanga, who is staying at Simla, is engaged in settling the details of the Calcutta Oriental pageant with Major-General Drummond, Inspector-General of the Imperial Service Troops.

PALGHAT VICE-PRINCIPAL'S CASE.

Municipality Severely Censured.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

OOTACAMUND, AUGUST 3.

An order of the Government covering 51 folio pages of print, giving the whole of the correspondence and history in the affairs of the Palghat Municipal Council concludes as follows :—"In the light of the evidence of the concerted faction, which is to be found in the recital of this succession of bitter disputes, illustrating the attitude taken up by the party of the Council which has consistently opposed the present Chairman, His Excellency the Governor in Council finds it very difficult to accept the contention of the councillors, with whose explanation he has to deal, that their action in voting for the unqualified reversal of the Chairman's orders, directing the discharge and dismissal of Mr. Ramanujachari, was dictated solely by conscientious motives and regard for the public interest. He cannot therefore recede from the position that the attitude of some, if not all, of these councillors besides being logically unjustifiable was also perverse and factious, and his apprehension that if they do not modify it their continuance in the council will bring contempt upon the administration. He is willing, however, to make some allowance for the possibility that the importance of the omission to call upon the Vice-Principal for a formal explanation as a preliminary to his dismissal was unduly magnified by the councillors, especially those who were lawyers by profession, and that confining their attitude to this narrow and technical view, they failed to estimate correctly the far weightier issues at stake. This constitutes the sole extenuating circumstance, which the Government has been able to find. After careful deliberation His Excellency in Council has decided that on this ground he will not insist, as he might do, on the removal of any of the offending councillors, but will content himself with making public this statement of the grounds, upon which he is compelled to censure gravely their conduct. He recognises that under the present constitution of the Council, important communities in the town are not properly represented, and he will now take into consideration whether it is not advisable to reduce the proportion of elective seats in order to secure a better representation of the leading interests."

LATER.

The Government of Madras has issued a report with its order thereon in the matter of the controversey regarding the Victoria College, Palghaut. The report goes into the whole history of the case as a result of a formal notice of discharge to the vice-principal and First Assistant of the College, Mr. A. T. Ramanuja Chari and the action of the Municipal Councillors of that town thereon. Accordingly in paragraph 4 of Order No. 935, dated 14th June 1911, the Government pointed out that the case of the vice-principal had been full discussed at the meeting of 20th April and that the councillors had before them the correspondence leaving no doubt

(1). that Mr. Ramanuja Chari had been guilty of grave and persistant insubordination;

(2). that he was a party to grave impropriety by allowing his case to be discussed in the public Press before it had been dealt with by the proper authorities, and

(3). that his return to the College could not fail to harm that institution and to weaken the disciplinary control of the principal to a degree altogether incompatible with efficient management. In such circumstances their support of the proposal to reinstate Mr. Ramanuja Chari without reserve seemed to His Excellency the Governor in Council a clear indication that in a matter of grave importance these Councillors had allowed personal feellings to over-ride the consideration for public good, and in his opinion there was good ground for apprehension that the Municipal administration would be brought into contempt by the continuance on the Council of men who allowed themselves to adopt such an attitude.

MANAGEMENT OF LADY'S PROPERTY.

Heavy Suit at Calcutta.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

CALCUTTA, AUGUST 3.

At the High Court, to-day, the Hon'ble the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Woodroffe delivered judgment in the appeal preferred by Grace Josephine DaCunha against an order of Mr. Justice Harrington, dismissing her suit claiming damages of three lakhs of rupees and other reliefs against the Alliance Bank of Simla, Messrs. Bird and Co., Sir Earnest Cabb and others.

She was the proprietress of the Civil and Sanitary Engineering Co., and borrowed money on mortgage of the firm's interests from some of the defendants. Afterwards the Alliance Bank advanced her money to the extent of Rs. 40,000, and by common consent Messrs. Bird and Co. took up the management of her business from August, 1907. She alleged that during these four years of their management, they showed a loss of 2 1-2 lakhs of rupees.

Their Lordships set aside the judgment of the lower court, and referred the matter to the Master of the Court for enquiry on the following :—An account of mortgages, whether during the period the property was in the Bank's possession there was any deterioration caused by mismanagement or negligence on the part of the Bank or Bird & Co. They ordered that after the enquiries had been completed the applicant would be at liberty to file an application for further relief and protection.

THE ABOR EXPEDITION.

Possibilities of Important Exploration.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

SIMLA, AUGUST 3.

In view of the forthcoming Abor Expedition, some discussion has ensued regarding the possibilities of fresh exploration work, and these are dealt with in the course of a departmental publication of the Survey of India. The late Dr. Gregorson's letters have been published in the English newspapers and the following extract has attracted attention in England :—"There, where the great Tsan-Po breaks through the Himalayas and drops 8,000 feet in 100 miles, the Niagara and Victoria falls of the Zembesi may not be in it, with what we may find. It is a chance of a life time. It is almost the only piece of important exploration in the world life undone. No one really knows whether the Tsan-Po of Tibet becomes the Subansiri in Assam, the Dihang in Assam or the Irrawaddy or the Mekong."

Although the opinions of Dr. Gregorson are apparently shared by other travellers, there is no real basis upon which they rest. There are for instance no a priori grounds for believing in the existence of great-falls on the Brahmaputra, the drop of this river between Tibet and Assam is not greater than that of numerous other Himalayan rivers, on none of which are great falls to be found. The only real reason that we have for believing in the existence of falls on the Brahmaputra, is that the survey explorer, Kinthup, stated that he had discovered them. With reference to the supposed connection of the Tsan-Po with the Irrawaddy or the Mekon it was shown in 1883 by Mr. Hennessey, Deputy Surveyor-General, in his report on Kishen Singh's explorations, that the Tsan-Po could not be connected with any one of the rivers of Burma or Siam. In his record dated 1884 on Kinthum explorations, Colonel Tanner, who was a recognised Himalayan authority, expressed the opinion that the connection between the Tsan Po and the Brahmaputra had been established. With reference to the suggestion published in the English newspapers that the Tsan-Po may be the Subansiri of Assam, it is only necessary to refer to the late General Woodthorpe's exploration of the Subansiri, an account of which was published in the annual report of the Survey of India for 1877-79. General Woodthorpe reported that the volume of the Subansiri was only one-fourth that of the Dihang.

Their Lordships confined the conviction, but reduced the sentence to the period already served.

MAGISTRATE SEVERELY CRITICISED.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

CALCUTTA, AUGUST 3.

At the High Court to-day, Mr. Justice Holmwood criticised on the knowledge of English of a Deputy Magistrate of Bogra, Maulvi Abdul Aziz, in disposing of a rule issued on behalf of Rai Rajani Kanto Mazumdar, Bahadur, Chairman of the local Municipality against whom proceedings were drawn up for perjury. his Lordship, in quashing the proceedings, observed that it is perfectly clear from the tone and language of the Deputy Magistrate that he does not understand the English language or the weight of the words which he makes use of and he appears to be equally ignorant of law. The District Magistrate in his explanation has perhaps wisely refrained from making any remarks although we may observe that we expect the District Magistrate when his subordinates indulge in such extraordinary procedure as this, to freely favour us with his opinion that his subordinate cannot be supported to say so.

NATAL PLANTERS AND INDIAN COOLIES.

The experiment of the sending of sirdars to India to recruit large numbers of indentured Indians for Natal, prior to July 1st, has proved a failure. The "Natal Mercury" in its issue of 27th June, makes the statement that the Natal tea and sugar planters have sustained another heavy disappointment in the permanent detention of nearly 500 coolies in Calcutta, who were to have provided part of the final batch of indentured labours from India to this country.

The circumstances of the present affair (says the "Mercury") are peculiar, but they appear to have arisen in consequence of on preventible fault on the part of anyone. The steamer "Umhloti", of the King line, which has held the contract for the conveyance of all the Indian immigration traffic, arrived here at the end of May, with the penultimate shipment of coolies. It had been arranged for her to return from Durban to Calcutta to bring over the final consignment, if a sufficiently large number had been accumulated, and advices being received that recruiting for the Calcutta depot had practically collapsed, the vessel's destination was altered, and she was sent on to England to load for Ceylon. It may be explained at this point that though the Bullard-King line is under contract to the Government to convey the indentured coolie traffic from India, the company have as tipulation in their agreement that two months' notice shall be given by the Government of shipping required, so that Messrs. King and Sons are absolved from any responsibility in the contretemps that subsequently occurred.

After the "Umhloti" had left, a fresh intimation was received on this side to the effect that matters in Calcutta had considerably improved, and that there would be upwards of 400 coolies ready for the steamer to embark when she arrived. Here was a situation to tax every resource the Immigration Department had at its disposal. Every man had to be fetched away from India by the end of June, otherwise the Government would prevent their leaving the country. It was impossible to bring the "Umhloti" out in time, for she does not arrive at Colombo until July 6, and the only other available vessel of the contract line was already under engagement to ship a full consignment of labourers from Madras on the 28th ult. The only possible course was to charter, and one steamer only—a British-India boat—could be found to perform the service at such short notice. She was not properly fitted for the purpose, however, according to the Indian authorities' requirements, and her use was disallowed by the Indian Government. An urgent request was then made by cable to the administrations in Calcutta to allow an extension of time for the dispatch of the coolies, in order to permit of a ships arriving there to fetch them. Promptly came the answer: "Indian Government refuses allow extention of time." A telegram was sent to the acting Prime Minister, at Pretoria, to use his influence to obtain such facilities as would enable the labourers to be brought over, but to this message no reply has yet been received. Then the immigration authorities on this side bethought themselves of another expedient. Early in July, the "Umhloti would be at Colombo, where she could be chartered, the coolies brought by rail from Calcutta, and shipped from Ceylon. But the Indian law designates only Calcutta and Madras as emigration ports for indentured labourers. In order to reach Colombo, the coolies would have to be embarked at Tuticorin for Kandy, and again the Indian authorities intervened. Indian Government refuses allow railage coolies from Calcutta,' read the second cable, and this apparently is the end of the matter.

The impossibility of bringing the Calcutta coolies away means the loss to the Natal plantations and the other employers concerned of 475 labourers, a deprivation which is accentuated by the fact that practically the whole of the people in question are the relatives of Indians now here, who, in consequence of their family connections not coming across, will very possibly return to their own country as soon as their indentures have terminated, instead of re-engaging, as they might have otherwise been expected to do. In addition to the loss of their labour, the employers will have to sacrifice some £2,000 represented by recruiting expenses, or so much of it as is not made up by the disposal of the labourers elsewhere, possible to Fiji, or some other labour market at a largely reduced cost to those accepting them. One further consignment of Indians is due to leave Madras, on the 28th ult., arriving in Natal, on about July 18, and these will be followed by no more.—"Indian Opinion" (July 1.)

EN PASSANT.

SINCE the last instalment of these notes, we have had news of the victory of the Bengali Football Team (the Mohan Bagan Athletic Club) in the finals for the Indian Football Association Shield. Through a series of hard tussles, during the tournament, they have proved their undoubted superiority, and all good sportsmen will add ungrudging congratulations for their success. From accounts to hand the winning eleven were perfectly balanced, highly scientific in play, and, individually, very fast. Added to these qualities they were in the pink of training; and knowing something of the characteristics of the race, I personally am not surprised at the result.

Football has long since become a National game among Bengalis, and there are scores of first rate players to pick from. Every man in the team, of which we speak, developed skill and training by such close application to the game, and at the expense of leisure that would not be possible with ordinary Civilian teams. They have won a long-coveted trophy entirely on their merits, and, it is probable, are the equal of any team in India. It seems pretty certain they will compete for the "Rovers" (or "West India Football Association" as I suppose it will now be called) Tournament, and add a very interesting element to the event.

A very close finish recorded for the game "Bombay Gymkhana vs. Royal Warwicks" in last Saturday's match in the Harwood League. It has been observed that the former named Club usually set up a better game against a notoriously strong team than when opposed to a weak combination. The result of the match in question seems to confirm the idea. On Saturday's form the Civilians should have won, though such result would not have established and claim to just the class the Military team maintains. One or two of the "Warwicks" were decidedly off-color, which but for the weakness here and there in their opponent's play, would have gone more against them than the subsequent result showed. Wednesday's game, Bombay Football Club vs. Bombay Gymkhana, was a very close affair. Neither teams were at their full strength. By a strange coincidence the goal-keepers of the two teams (Walker and Lewin) took post in the firing line. Their places between the posts, however, seemed equally well filled by substitutes. During the first half the Gymkhana did most of the pressing and managed to net a goal, the result probably of the mis-kick of the opposing back. After the interval the Bombay Club took up the attacking and equalised. There was little to chose between the teams, hence the continued efforts of both sides to gain a lead kept up the interest, in a remarkable degree, to the end. On Saturday, the Bombay Football Club meet the Royal Artillery, and, if they can get their full strength on the field, will give the Gunners a good tussle for honours.

The house-rent question seems to form an evergreen subject for comment, in which our local Press chips in from time to time. Two or three years ago one might have heard, freely expressed the opinion that "Rents must go down". It was perhaps thought that landlords would prefer a smaller return on his capital to the prospect of tenantless houses ; a surmised natural sequence of the prevailing prices fixed on the many new flats available.

In several cases brought to my notice a smaller return than obtains on some house property would be like giving change for a rupee. Ground valuation under the Improvement Trust, in desirable localities, equals that in the City of London. Added to this first charge, the enforcement of unnecessarily substantial, and ornate types of buildings, has, so far, made it quite impossible for any system of reasonable rentals. House property on the Colaba Reclamation, even at the high rates demanded, and taking contingencies into account does not, it is believed, bring in an average of 4 per cent. a poor return for the trouble and risk involved in such investment.

Your correspondent (in the issue of the 1st) Mr. S. S. Mistry closes his interesting letter with the opinion that houses built to last 80 years would fulfil every useful expectation. As far as my impressions go there need be little wanting in convenience or appearance in such residences, either. People at home find ample comfort in the typical Suburban Vill erected variably at a cost of from £400 to £1,000. The life of the more "pucca" kind of these would be anything over 60 years to the limit given. No one advocates "Jerry-building", but the tendency to go to the other extreme, against the comfort and present needs of the million, is a policy opposed to reason and justice. While on the subject it may be mentioned that Government recently sanctioned a house-rent allowance for the relief of certain of its employes residing in Presidency Cities. The scheme excludes the un-gazetted ranks upon whom the prevailing high rents, and increase of prices in the necessaries of life press the more heavily. This may, however, be remedied hereafter. The allowance applies only to the family man who, to gain its benefits, must have some female relation dependent upon, and residing with him. Bachelors may, therefore, feel themselves taxed at last. A feature in the arrangement is the sliding scale assessment. The man in receipt of Rs. 700 to 1,000 draws the highest rate. Above that salary the allowance decreases.

To seek the gift of Rain
Pray to God ;
Abstain from immorality ;
Abstain from slander.

So run posters in English and the Vernacular, on the walls of native parts of the City, forming one of the signs of fore-boding caused by the vagaries of the monsoon. Happily, however, at the time of writing, there are indications that we are within measureable distance of alleviation. It would, indeed, be a national calamity to be face to face with permanent drought, and its awful consequences, in this otherwise auspicious year.

Public funds have been drawn upon in all directions, for the coming great event at Delhi, and no cancelment could have saved the huge expense already incurred. Reducing the matter to local interest, the Mill Industry, which so directly influences the prosperity of Bombay, depends upon the purchasing power of the millions of India, which is compromised in proportion to the out-turn of crops, and to the normal conditions of market rates. Last year, as we know, a bumper yield of produce was recorded, but most of the benefit, as far as the local mills were concerned, was counteracted by the abnormal rate of Indian cotton forced to that position by an unprecedented export demand necessitated by failure of the American crop. The result was, that the margin between the raw material and the usual price of the finished article, did not cover the cost of manufacturing, and mills were forced to sell at a loss, or hold on to stocks. The situation will be reversed to some extent this year, for American crops promise well, while Indian prospects are, so far, doubtful. Even a return of normal conditions will not ensure the prosperity of 1910, though it will save a disastrous situation.

Present news of the All-India (or, in view of the objection of a Bengali correspondent in a contempory, the Bombay Presidency team with power to add) are re-assuring, and there will be general satisfaction among sportsmen in the East, that Indians can compete creditably in the English National Game in the land of its origin. It was, perhaps, too much to expect that the Visitors could make a successful stand against the best of the County elevens, but that they are meeting teams worthy of their mettle has been demonstrated by results which are highly creditable. Referring again to the somewhat hysterical protest of the correspondent alluded to it is doubtful if Native Cricket even at its best, on the other side of India is equal to that of the Western Presidency. In any case the matter must be open to a fair test, and opinion reserved for confirmation by results.

THE LATE FATHER JANSEN

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

RANGOON, AUGUST 3.

The remains of Rev. Father Jansen were interred this morning in the main entrance of the R. C. Cathedral, Bishop Cardot celebrated High Requiem Mass prior to the ceremony. A bronze tablet will be erected on the wall of the church. No monument is considered necessary other than the Cathedral where his great work was done.

AUCTION BRIDGE.

VI.

LET me begin to-day with a couple of hands from actual play, each of which has its own moral (I should like to say here, that any hands presenting points of interest which players would kindly send me will be thankfully received and fairly examined Critical discussion of all hands mentioned in these papers, from interested readers, would also be welcome. At present I know I am in the position of the painter, of whom the Lion complained, He always made the men beat the Lion let me paint the picture, said the Lion, and it will be otherwise.)

The first hand illustrates the need to keep the mind constantly on the score, and the mouth shut till you have fully weighed all the risks ahead, and the chances of profit. The rubber was at that point a large one in favour of N. and S. Game all, W. and E. twenty-four up, N. and S. love. W. dealt and called One Diamond. N. a cautious player No. E. No. S. (forgetting for a moment the 24 up, and thinking that there was little chance of the enemy getting out in Diamonds, No. (in a hurry). The fatal monosyllable had hardly escaped his lips, when (he assures me) he could have bitten the offending tongue. The hand he gives me tells only too plainly why. Here it is. K. J. 10 and three small spades; K. and three small Clubs 5, one small Diamond; K. and one small heart. Now if he had thought of the score, he would have felt that this was a case if ever there was one of a push. Suppose he had called Three Spades, (as I think in all the circumstances he ought to have done) W. would in all probability have said No. N. No. E. Two diamonds, S. No. W., No. N. Two No Trumps (this would have been almost forced in the position). Now W. and E. are in a difficulty. They must either call four diamonds or (and this is more likely) one or the other would have doubled the Two No Trumps, or they would have had to submit to letting N. and S. try for their two No Trumps. Four diamonds was quite beyond all reasonable expectation. If they had called that contract, they must have gone down. Here are the hands, N. Ace and three small hearts; Q. and two small Clubs ; three small diamonds ; ace and two small spades. E. J. and two hearts; A. J. and two clubs; A. K. J. Diamonds; Q. and two spades. W's hand is negligible except to remember that it contained six diamonds to the Jack. As the cards lay it is only too plain that had N. and S. gone into two No Trumps, as they would have been forced to do, if S. had evercalled the original one diamond, with three spades, they must have made three by cards game and rubber. Leaving W. in with his one diamond, gave away the game and rubber, as a free present.

The next hand raises a nice point of principle which has been touched upon in a preceding paper. Game all Love All. N. dealt and called One Heart E. Two Diamonds. S. Double. W. No. N. E. No. E. made three by cards and won game and rubber. Here are the important features of the hands. N. Ace, King and four hearts; four clubs to the 10; two small diamonds, and a single Spade. E. Five Diamonds, King quint ; K and small Spades K. and small clubs ; single heart. S. Q. J. 10 Hearts Ace and four small Diamonds from the 7 down ; Q. and one club ; Q. J. and one small Spade. W. Three small Hearts ; one small Diamond, Ace J. and small club; Ace and other Spades. The question of theoretical interest is whether S. should have backed up N.'s call of One Heart, by raising it to Two, over E.'s Two diamonds., or, as he did, doubled the Two Diamonds to leave it to N. to overcall into his own Suit if he wished to. There is a good deal to be said on both sides of this question. N. naturally blamed S. for not raising the Heart contract with three honours in the suit. And I daresay most players will agree with him. S. on the other hand contends that with the cards he held, his better course was to let N. know that he had one trick at least in the diamond and so leave it to him to call over.

An original One Heart call, is moderately non-committal. It may mean a lot of things. This only for certain, that if the call is let alone, the player expects to make five tricks out of his own hand. But he may intend to make them all in his trump suit ; or what is commoner, he may hope to make three tricks in Trumps and two, in outside suits. When the player who offers a one Heart contract is relying solely on his trumps (as here, for N. had not the ghost of an outside trick in his hand) it is submitted that it is his duty, when his partner doubles an overcall in another suit to go on with his original Heart Call. He has the promise of some definite assistance at any rate, and he knows that his own hand is utterly valueless outside hearts, which are certain to be ruffed, if the double is left in. His partner cannot know anything of the kind.

The argument that by doubling, S. does not encourage his partner to expect anything in Hearts, may be thought to be of little weight, when the player who called them has himself six to the Ace King. What has he to fear in Hearts? Nothing at all. But if his partner overcalls back into hearts, he is only told that his partner has an honour at least in hearts, which with such a holding as N. had here, is a matter of no consequence. Suppose S. had overcalled the two diamonds with two hearts, W. or E. would have been quite certain to push with Three Diamonds, and N. so encouraged would have been forced into Three Hearts, which he would not have made. But after the double in Diamonds, E. and W. would certainly not have ventured three Diamonds and N. and S. could have made their Two Hearts, (with luck and correct play) but barely, and without much chance I think of making a third trick.

Those appear to me to be the fair pros and cons of this argument, and it would be interesting if players would offer their own opinions. It is always a question of difficulty and delicacy, when to raise your partner's first bid (particularly when it is of the non-committal kind, such as One Heart or One Diamond) and when to show that the suit in which he is overcalled is safe in your hands. My own inclination has always been towards the latter play. But unless your partner accepts the principle and is prepared to go on, if his hand is so made up as to show little prospect of doing anything at all outside his own suit, you may, as in this case, come to dreadful grief and be exposed to the sad pathetic recriminations of your partner, who is quite sure to say as much as this, if no more, "we should have done better in My suit, Partner." Well, of course.

The score tells us all that only too plainly after the event. But the difficulty has to be met before the event ; that is the trouble in this most tricky and fascinating of games. I should never hesitate myself, were I placed as N. was, in this hand, to go back into my original six card Heart suit. But there is a great deal to be said for N.'s view point too. So many players are greedy, and when they clinch an overcall with a double are morose for the rest of the evening if you don't let them try at all costs to make a score above the line out of the adversaries. It is, indeed, impossible to lay down any hard and fast rule. It is all a matter of card judgment, and he who has the most information, is most responsible for the exercise of that judgment. Suppose in this hand, for instance, that the first call had meant that N. hoped to make three tricks in hearts and two outside, then the double would have been quite safe and would have come off. With such cards N. would probably have been right to leave the double in. But when he meant to make all his tricks in Hearts, ought he not to have realized that S. was in great danger with his double? No one could depend upon Hearts going round more than once, and therefore N. was only offering his partner one trick, if Diamonds were trumps, whereas, if he went on, he was moderately sure of at least four, and probably five.

With his partner's assurance of help in Diamonds he was almost certain of Six tricks, and it was virtually certain that he would not be doubled in Hearts, so there was very little risk in going on into Two Hearts. I think that advantage of the double in such a situation is saved your partner from being pushed into extravagant contracts. If S. here had simply raised the Heart bid, W. with his strong Spade and Clubs would almost certainly have called Three Diamonds. But with the menace of Two Diamonds doubled hanging over him, what could he do! He knew nothing about the location of the two black Kings ; all he did know was that, E. and S. monopolized the Diamonds between them, while N. was looking after the Hearts. Holding a single small Diamond, his mouth was effectually shut. And E. was in a more questionable position still, he knew nothing about the Black Aces, & surely would not have dared to go on.

ACE OF SPADES.

A CHAT ABOUT BOOKS.

Sovereign Power by Mark Lee Luther (Macmillan)—An exciting and well written romance this, which keeps our curiosity going throughout, it is the lively history of a Royal personage to recover his ancestral throne situated somewhere in the Balkans. In order to escape the prying observations of suspicious diplomats, whose Courts wish nothing so little as they desire his success, he pretends to be an idler, and pursuades a charming American to assist him in the role. The stratagem does not deceive the keen eyes watching him, and the Prince's plans are effectively frustrated at the critical moment. But the acting of the part is capitally conceived, and makes a lively and entertaining narrative. A novel turn is given to a plot, ingenious in many respects, but not altogether new, by the addition of the aeroplane to the usual stock-in-trade of the romancer. An animated description of the Rheims aviation meeting prepares the way for the introduction of this new form of locomotion into the machinery of the story, and although the action is quite independent of the heavier-than-air craft until the closing chapter, when the Prince makes a tragic exit "like a falling star," the aeroplane may be said to play a not inconspicuous part in the story. Our Blair is the charming American girl who meets Prince Rodoslav at Rheims they become great friends, she consents to become his ally, and altogether looses her head at the idea of the exalted position she hopes to occupy when the shares the throne with the Prince.

Rubber by Philip Schidrowitz Ph. D.(Methuen)—So large is the amount of British capital invested in concerns for the production of rubber that the subject must have an interest more or less deep for the average reader. Dr. Schidrowitz thinks it is probable that the total investments in the plantation rubber industry are not far short of 70 millions sterling. His remarks on the present position and prospects of the industry may be commended to the attention of holders of rubber shares, as they are based on the result of investigations "on the spot," the author having made a tour last year in Malaya and Sarawak, while he was already an acknowledged expert on rubber. Dealing with the future cost of production, Dr. Schidrowitz expresses the view that the most important point is that of labour, of which he foresees in course of time a scarcity; an interesting book discribing among things the chemistry and mechanics of rubber also the various branches of the rubber industry.

Life and its Puppets being stories from India and the West by Otto Rothfeld (Simpkin Marshall)—The author of "Indian Dust" has written another book of good stories, but this time some of the best stories are of the West. A grim Scottish story "The Two Brothers" show his quick sense of drama "the choice" also shows him as a sympathetic writer. As for the new Indian stories in this collection they have all the properties which made "Indian Dust" something of a revelation. The seven episodes of "Heart's Ease" blaze with Oriental colour and palpitate with the clash of Rajput battle; and in "Family Honour" there is a little famine story of exquisite pathos.

Master Christopher by Mrs. Henry de La Pasture (Smith Elder)—Lady Clifford reveals in "Master Christopher" the qualities which made Mrs, Henry de la Pasture's 'Peter's Mother,' so successful." Christopher Thorverton has his faults, but he hardly deserved so bad a time as fate dealt out to him. Erica accepted him for his money and then thinking that he had no feelings carries on serious flirtations with his neighbours. Much worse, however, than Erica's behaviour is that of these two young men who while enjoying Christopher's hospitality, try to get Erica to break off her engagement to him. It is treachery which the reader can hardly understand from two seemingly honourable men, and, on the whole, we are inclined to think that Mrs. de la Pasture is here at fault in her characterisation.

Other Laws by John Parkinson (Lane)—A cleverly written book with good conversation and much human nature, which tries to show us that very clever people often make a haste of their lives, through their mobility to see things as others see them. And so we see Hawkins, the brilliant explorer, who finds many new rivers in the jungle losing the clever woman he loves and then trying to persuade her to leave the man she has married. Whether or not he succeeds is not made quite clear and on the whole we are inclined to think that Lina goes home to dinner and her husband. Some poet of the story takes place in West Africa which is evidently well known to the author.

Lilian Arnold, whose highly entertaining novel "Also Joan," has just been published by Mr. John Long, is already known to fame as a journalist of some repute. Born in Warwickshire, the third daughter and seventh child of the late David Nelson Arnold of Bickenhill Hall, she began to write at the early age of seven, her initial effort being a poem in honour of her father's birthday, inscribed on a slate. Her father, however, was a bigoted Presbyterian Orangeman, being the decendant of one of four brothers who fought under William of Orange at the Battle of the Boyne, and settled in Co. Leitrim, and although himself extraordinarily widely read, was inclined to regard the arts as mere wiles of the Devil, and no paternal encouragement was held out to the youthful scribe. At the age of twelve she was sent with a younger sister to the Moravian School, Neuweid on the Rhine. Here in addition to acquiring a proficient knowledge of the German language, she imbibed a good deal of its literary atmosphere, some of her impressions doubtless finding expression in her first novel "Liege-Lady," published some five or six years ago, in which the scenes are laid in Germany, and are in the opinion of at least one eminent critic very well done. Of this book "The Times" remarked: Both plot and characters are well conceived. There is power in the conception of the characters and poignancy in their story. Fritchie, the gossipy, match-making wife of the pastor, is admirable. The "Daily Telegraph" declared: "The style is very attractive, and the characterisation of the dramatis persona worthy of great praise." The death of her mother, and her father, second marriage, caused Lilian Arnold to leave home while still in her teens and make a bid for independence. She first essayed to teach—but quickly found the lack of any vocation whatsoever, and all her leisure was devoted to writing short stories, essays, verses, anything and everything in short. One morning the postman brought her first proof. It was from to-day, then edited by Jerome K. Jerome, and in order to settle some detail raised in the accompanying letter, she set off on her first journey to Fleet. On the way she managed to lose her purse and confiding the fact to a sympathetic sub-editor, he very kindly lent her half-a-crown to get home with. Few authors we imagine can boast of borrowing half-a-crown from their very first editor on sight! Soon afterwards the late Henry Reichardt, then editor of "St. Paul's" and "Madame," offered her a place on his staff, and during two year, she served a most valuable and highly amusing apprenticeship in which she learned how to say most things and more important still what not to say at all. A year or two later, by marriage without a first cousin, Lilian Arnold changed her conditions of life without a change of name or indeed of environment, for monetary considerations no less than inclination compelled her still to follow her journalistic and literary bent. On the retirement through hill health of Lady Colin Campbell in 1907, she was appointed Editor of the "Ladies' Field." with which paper she had been long connected, a fact she is want to allude to laughingly as the solitary instance of virtue adequately rewarded, that has come under her notice.

The same publisher has also brought out an important book on "Weather Science," an introduction to meteorology, by F.W.Henkel, B.A., F.R.A.S., Member of the British Astronomical Association. The book deals in a popular yet scientific manner with weather problems and prognostics, theories of atmospheric circulation, clouds, their various forms and movements, the wind, atmospheric electricity, local and seasonal variations, etc. An account is given of the principal instruments made use of by meteorologists, and the work of a "Second Order" observatory, as well as some reference to standard and self-recording instruments. The author also deals with the results of recent reseach in the upper regions of the vast atmospheric ocean. The volume is illustated by photographs of cloud forms, drawings of instruments and apparatus, maps and diagrams, and views of observatories.

GOLF IN BOMBAY.

Madras Medal.

A competition, over 18 holes under medal play, was held on Wednesday and Thursday mornings for the Madras silver challenge medal, the competitor returning the lowest net score to hold the medal for one year and win a prize of the total entrance sweepstakes. The rain, this week, has greatly improved the 'going' through the green and made real golf possible. This is all in favour of the short handicap men, and inexperienced golfers had a bad time on Wednesday morning after the heavy showers during the previous night. There was again a large entry, 40 competitors playing in the first round, and of these only 13 made no return. With the exception of a 38 by Gittens, all were over 40.

The play on Thursday morning was most disappointing and of the 27 players still in only 10 returned cards. A high wind was blowing and the state of the course prevented any run on the ball. C. H. Roberts (scr) and Landon and Roberts, —14, and —18 respectively, tied for first place and will have to play off for the medal. The standard of play was too poor to call for any comment.

BOMBAY ROVERS' TOURNAMENT.

A circular issued by the Western India Football Association, announces that the twenty-second annual tournament for the "Rovers" Challenge Cup will commence on September 16. The tournament rules of the Association must be observed. Entries will close on September 9th, and the draw will take place on September 12.

BOXING AT TARDEO.

Baliwalla's Theatre was crowded last night, when a boxing entertainment was given, which included a fight for the middle-weight championship of Bombay, F.H.Baker, an ex-Army man having challenged the winner of the middle weight fight, which recently took place at the same theatre.

There was a very large audience, which included several well known people in Bombay and the entertainment opened with a four round contest between J. Wallace and Private Hastings of the Royal Warwickshire Regiment. Hastings looked a winner all through, and Wallace retired in the second round. The next match was between Vol. Major (G. I. P. Ry. Vols.) and Vol. Easdon, (B. V. R). For three rounds it was a level and open fight; then Easdon began to score and won nicely on points. Next followed a ten round fight between Lance-Corpl. Cranbrooke of the R. Warwickshire Regiment and Sergeant Nolan of the Royal Dublin Fusiliers. Nolan, who had the better all through, opened slowly but did not take full advantages of his opportunities, and won an uninteresting fight on points.

After an interval the principal fight between Sub-Inspector Melville and Baker took place, it being a match of fifteen rounds. In the first round, Baker was twice sent down and taking the defence during the next two rounds allowed Melville to put on points. Baker was again down in the 5th round, after taking some punishment and after a hard gruelling in a corner, gave up the fight to Melville in the seventh round. It was afterwards stated, but not officially, that the loser had given in on account of an injured thumb.

The remainder of the programme included a six-round match in which Corpl. Jarvis, of the R. Warwickshire Regt; easily beat Vol. Guilder, (B. V. R.) in the fourth round, and also an exhibition of Indian wrestling.

It is understood that Sub-Inspector Melville, having won this fight against Baker, has been challenged by Chapman, Middleweight Champion of India.

STANDARD BAROMETER READING.

The reading of the barometer at the Colaba Observatory corrected for index error and reduced to 32° F. and for Calcutta standard at 8 a. m. (local time) on the 3rd August, was 29·811 inches. The height of Observatory barometer cistern above zero of the tide gauge at Apollo Bunder is 47 feet. The height of tide in the stream above zero of the tide gauge was 12 feet at 8 a. m. (local time). The temperature correction for a mercurial barometer, supposing the reading to be 30·00 inches and that of the attached thermometer 80deg. F. will be ·14inch and this will be higher and lower by ·01 inch for each 4 degrees. In the case of the aneroid no temperature correction is required. Should the height of barometer cistern, either mercurial or aneroid above zero of tide gauge be different from 47 feet, it will read higher or lower by ·01 inch for each 11 feet. The readings above are distinct from those given in the daily weather report, to which different corrections have been applied.

KARACHI FREIGHT MARKET.

(From our Correspondent.)

KARACHI, August 3.

The freight market has been stagnant and without any enquiry, Holders of wheat are very firm, and this combined with the lack of movement in European markets, renders business impracticable. The engagements during the week total 2,250 tons. Three steamers have been chartered for this month's loading at full rates and the liners on the spot are firm in their ideas, but shippers do not respond.

Advice to Mothers:—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentary and diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other cases. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere.

BY THE WAY.

THE RESTING-PLACE OF "COLONEL NEWCOME."

Most persons associate Ayr with only one name in literature—that of the Scottish national poet. It may be of interest to recall the fact that the town has associations with Thackeray and his family. While many of the admirers of the novelist are aware that his step-father was the prototype of one of the most loveable characters in fiction, there are few who know that the original of Colonel Newcome died in Ayr, and that he was laid to rest there by Thackeray. A brass tablet on the south wall of the choir, in the Church of the Holy Trinity, in Ayr, bears the following inscription:

Sacred to the Memory of
MAJOR HENRY WILLIAM CARMICHAEL SMYTH.
Of the Bengal Engineers
Who Departed this Life at Ayr
9th September, 1861
Aged 81 years.

Adsum.

And lo, he whose heart was as that of a little child, had answered to his name, and stood in the presence of the Master.—"Newcomes," vol. iii, ch. 26.

"On the rebuilding of the church his grave was brought within the wales, He was laid to rest immediately beneath this place by his step-son: William Makepeace Thackeray. This memorial was put up in 1887 by some members of the family."

ALFRED JINGLE ON THE STAGE.

The production at the Savoy of "Two Peeps at Pickwick" reminds old playgoers of the admirable performance which Sir Henry Irving gave a good many years ago of the stroller in "Pickwick," an odd circumstance being the advertisements—"Mr. Irving to-night in 'The Bells, and 'Jingle'!" This was a version of scenes in "Pickwick" prepared by the late James Albery, and Irving was the living image of Jingle as drawn in the original illustrations to the book—lanky, hawk like, and most accurately shabby in dress. The comedy of the part was given its full value, and the scene of penitence in the Fleet Prison was the vehicle for some wonderfully effective pathos. During part of the run, at and rate, Sir Arthur Pinero was in the cast of 'Jingle," and, careful actor as he was, gave a very good account of the character entrusted to him.

SOUTHWARK'S POETS.

Like other poets of distinction—Gower, Chaucer, Shakespeare, Dyer, Middleton, Goldsmith, Southey, Browninig, and Eliza Cook for example—Mr. Davies, who has just been awarded a Civil List pension, has intimate connexions with Soutwark. His first volume of poems which gave him at once a secure position among English poets was largely written in Southwark. He made his home at a cheap lodging house there—it had suggestions of the country-side in its name "The Farmhouse," and was no doubt in this respect pleasing to so ardent a lover of the open road and—the neighbouring public library in the Borough-road were South London's address was presented by Southwark's Mayor to the King the other day, served as his study daily. As in the case of Goldsmith, some of his poems indicate Mr. Davies's close acquaintance with life in Southwark.

BRITISH QUEENS FROM FRANCE.

It may be interesting to note at the present time that France, according to a French paper, has given ten Queens to England, and that eight of them have been crowned at Westminster. The first of these Queens was Matilda of Boulogne, niece of Godfrey de Bouillon, who was crowned in 1136, with her husband, King Stephen. She was buried at Faversham. Another famous French Queen was Catherine of Valois, wife of Henry V., who was received by the English as "the Angel of God." Her subsequent marriage, after she became a widow, was with a commoner, and from this marriage sprung the dynasty of Tudors. Two centuries later Henrietta, daughter of Henry IV. of France, married Charles I., and her body still reposes in England. She was last of the French Queens.

ENCKE'S COMET DUE.

Any day now some keen-sighted astronomer may track down Encke's Comet, which is due at perihelion on August 19, and will be most favourable situated for detection from the northern hemisphere about the middle of this month. This comet is one of our most frequent visitors, its period of revolution being little more than three years, and, in addition, is it especially interesting by reason of a mysterious acceleration in its mean motion. It was suggested some years ago that its orbit was contracting on account of the resistance of a medium in inter-planetary space, and that in time it would fall into the sun. Were that theory correct, the same fate would overtake the earth and all the other planets, but it has not been supported by modern investigators. A relation recently traced between the acceleration of its motion and the sunspot period has given birth to the theory that the periodical outbursts in the sun may have some effect on the movement of the comet in its orbit.

THE BUFFALO BOOM BUTTON.

Propaganda by button is not unknown in connexion with election in England and America. Buffalo (one learns from the "Metal Industry" for July) has just scored a victory against Milwaukee Chicago, St. Louis, and other places, having been chosen as the meeting-place next year of the Convention of the American Foundrymen's Association. One of the many ingenious methods of booming the "Bison" city for 1912 was the employment of badges and signs bearing the emblem of a buffalo, which were scattered broadcast. Every visitor to the exhibition this year in Pittsburg was immediately decorated with a button, bearing the words "I am for" over the device of a buffalo, and literature with all sorts of catch phrases was displayed at all booths, together with placards which were seen everywhere. At it is expected that there will be an attendance of at least six thousand visitors at the next convention, it will tax the ability of the city to its utmost to provide for the huge exhibition.

IRISH POINT LACE AND THE "POTATO FAMINE."

Youghal point lace, of which a complete dress is to be made for Queen Mary, origiaated indirectly from the failure of the potato crop in 1846, though the inspiration was furnished by a piece of point de Milan which fell into the hands of the abbess of a convent at Youghal, co. Cork. Hitting upon the idea of setting up a incrative industry for the half-starved children attending the convent school, she studied this stray bit of lace, unraveiled the threads one by one, and finally mastered the complicated details. She then selected the children cleverest at needlework and taught them separately what she herself had learned. From Youghal the point lace industry has spread to other parts of Ireland, notably to some districts in the neighbourhood of Kenmare, co, Kerry. The chief characteristic of Youghal point lace is that it is worked entirely with the needle.

NEW KNIGHT OF THE ROUND TABLE.

Admiral Count Togo, O. M., has been unanimously elected an Honorary Knight Vice-President of "The Knights of the Round Table" Club, one of the oldest institutions of its kind in existence, including among its members men distinguished in the learned professions and in Society. In the past many of the best-known members of the theatrical professions were in its ranks, among them Sir Henry Irving, John L. Toole. J. B. Buckstone, F. B. Chatterton, Sir Augustus Harris, David James, Colonel Mapleson, Edward Righton, Carl Rosa, Edward Terry, Thomas Thorne, and Ben Webster. The names of Edmund Yates and Laurence Kellie appear among those representing literature and music. The club has always made a special feature of the promotion of good fellowship, and in pursuance of this object has worked steadily for an increase of the mutual understanding between our allies and comrades of the Japanese nation and their British friends. The Knight-President of the club is Admiral Sir Archibald L. Douglas, G. C. B., G. C. V. O., who, during his distinguished naval career, played an important part in the establishment of what is to-day a most efficient and powerful Japanese Navy.

"THE PROTEUS OF DISEASE."

Indigestion's Innumerable Forms.

Of all the disorders to which humanity is heirs indigestion is undoubtedly the most frequent. Its symptoms are endless in their variety and its causes are scarcely less numerous.

Whatever the cause, the greatest care has undoubtedly to be exercised in the question of food, so as to give the digestive organs the opportunity to rest and regain their strength and tone.

Such a food must put the minimum tax on the stomach, it must be digested with the minimum expenditure of the energy by the nervous system, and must be readily assimilated to make actual flesh and blood.

Of all the preparations known to medical Science, not one possesses these qualities in as great a degree as Sanatogen, which consists of the albumin of milk chemically combined with glycero-phosphate of sodium.

The value of Sanatogen in cases of Dyspepsia is abundantly proved by many articles in the leading medical journals, from one of which, the "General Practitioner," May 20th, 1905, the following case is quoted:—"H. C., aged 34 years. I saw him on March 10th; he was suffering from marked dyspepsia, loss of appetite, and had lost 10 3-4lbs. in weight during his two months' absence. No phthisical signs could be found in his lungs. He was ordered two teaspoonfuls of Sanatogen thrice daily, and ordinary diet. At the end of a week his indigestion had entirely gone, his appetite was normal, and he had already increased 2 1-4 lbs. in weight."

Sanatogen may be obtained of all Chemists and Bazaars.

THE LADIES' CORNER.

LACE CHAIR-BACKS.

Nothing has come in for more admiration of late writes a lady correspondent from London, than the new lace chair-backs, which add so much to the fresh appearance of the modern drawing-room. These are daintier and more ornamental than the old-fashioned kind, for they are made of fine white or cream muslin, adorned with inset filet squares and insertions, and are to be obtained in varying sizes to fit both chairs and the backs of settees; a very fresh and charming effect is produced by using these new squares of embroidery on the chairs, and having all the curtains and the cushion covers in the room "en suite."

CUSHION COVERS.

Some of the newest cushion covers are very elaborate. They are composed of richly fluted and corded short glace silk, while not a few are further ornamented with satin flowers appliqued on to a plain silk or velvet cover, one very elaborate lace cushion square is of muslin inset with lace, and worked with white embroidery, while right down the centre is a bunch of soft satin roses, which is mounted on some scented wadding emitting a subtle perfume. During sale-time hand-embroidered muslin covers are greatly reduced, and many needlewomen are buying them and enriching them with appliques of lace and flowers, further elaborating the design of the lace with sequins and fine gold thread. In the same way tiny lace mats for dinner tables are being outlined with silks and sequins,

A NEW DRESS HANGER.

A novelty which will be appreciated by all women who have been confronted with the problem of the right way to hang or fold delicate Empire princess gowns, is a frock-hanger consisting of a double wooden rail, through which the toilette is slipped, and allowed to hang is such a position that no strain is placed upon the shoulders of the gown. This hanger also prevents the dresses from getting crumpled on the floor of the wardrobe, and is therefore particularly useful for those with long trains, and takes up very little room in a wardrobe or hanging cupboard.

SOME HOLIDAY SUGGESTIONS.

There is nothing more invaluable to the woman traveller who is anxious to limit her luggage as much as possible as the new assortment of hat mounts which are being offered by a well-known firm of milliners. These consist of wreaths of natural looking flowers, of well-made ribbon bows and bands, and of smart coque and feather mounts, all of which are complete in themselves, only requiring to be attached by a stitch or some pins to any shaped hat. With the help of one or two of these adjuncts it is quite possible to start for one's holiday with no more than two hats, and yet to have a change of millinery for all occasions. Under these conditions a feather-trimmed hat can quite easily be transformed into a floral one, if the occasion demands, while a smart big glace bow makes the same shape suitable for long railway journeys or dusty drives.

SUEDE HATS.

Perhaps the most popular form of millinery for travelling purposes are those smart little round hats, simply trimmed with a strap and buckle, which are fashioned of coloured suede, in such colours as cinnamon champagne, cerise Royal blue myetle green mole grey saxe blue purple, or other varying shades. Being very soft, they are ideal for motoring and can be worn with serge or cotton frocks for country use. Several women have bought them to wear with white linen and serge frocks adopting the idea of wearing suede shoes to match and carrying an "en tout cas" of a like colour finished with a suede covered handle.

NEW KNIVES.

The new table cutlery that does not require to be cleaned by any other process save that of washing is composed of a mixture of silverplate and of steel, and, contrary to most people's ideas, quite as easy to sharpen as the ordinary old-fashioned variety. It has a much brighter surface than the ordinary steel blade, and there is no chance of the handles and joints getting discoloured, as is the case when knife powder and all the old paraphernalia formerly required for knife-cleaning is employed.

GREEN ROOM GOSSIP.

A KEBLE HOWARD COMEDY.

If Pauline Huegall—"The Girl Who Couldn't Lie"—had been in the audityrium of the Criterion in the mail week, one wonders what she would have said to Mr. Keble Howard after his play was over? To have returned home quietly would scarcely have been in keeping with her disagreeable I-say-it-to-your-face principales. She would have forced her way past the stage-doorkeeper, and thus, with that deathly calmness of hers, have addressed the auther: "Your play, Mr. Howard, is not very good. The theme decomes monotonous halfway through the first act, and the climax occurs in the opinning scene at the breakfast-table. After that, it is all "diminuendo." You should have compressed the story into a single act. Then you could have cut out, among other superfluities, the fun you poke at short-sightedness, which is rather a plebeian form of humour. Your title is misleading and so is your moral. It isn't only that your heroine can't tell taradiddles, but that she can't refrain from blurting out her opinions. Now, always to say what you think is not necessarily always to speak the truth; and if, as is the case with 'the girl who couldn't lie,' you give expression only to your unpleasant thoughts, then of course it is better to say nothing at all. So that, Mr. Howard, what you prove is not that it is impracticable to pursue a ligidly truth-telling course, but that it is impracticable to tell everyone you meet all the nasty things you think about them." When Mr. Howard however gets away from his main theme, which rarely fails to bore, and applies himself purely to suburbanism, he is frequently amusing: while the acting of the play is admirable throughout.

THE PLOT AND THE PLAYERS.

The plot may be told briefly. Pauline Huegall, one of six children (which may be taken as an explanation of her psychological attitude), sees a delightful opportunity of saying all the nasty things that have been boiling in her for twenty years, under cover of the morality of truth. So one morning, when she comes down to breakfast, she tells her father that he is weak and snobbish; her mother that she is shallow and a liar her eldest sister that she is dull and plain; the two babies of the family that they are "brats", and so on. She tells her rich uncle that he is vulgar, self-indulgent, mean, and bad tempered and her "fiance that he is entirely commonplace. When the latter asks her if she doesn't love him, the best she will answer is that so does not chafe against his society. You perceive her error. Tiresias said, "I am free for I have in me the strength of truth." But Pauline is fettered, because she has in her only its weakness. The consequences are serious. The engagement is broken off, the rich uncle cuts the family out of his will. the neighbours cut the family out of their visiting-lists, and Pauline leaves the house. The last act, "with special scenic effect," shows several transparencies, in which we follow Pauline's crusade in a boarding-house—which conscience compels her to call a filthy kennel—as a governess and as a companion. Finally she returns to the bosom of a forgiving family, and the curtain descends upon her in the act of uttering a white lie, The humour, which is quite plentiful in the opening act is admirably interpreted by an excellent cast Mr. Franklin Dyall and Miss Marie Illington as the father and mother Miss Elaine Sledall as the depressing eldest daughter Miss Vera Wray as the youngest hope Miss Pollie Emery as an unlikely servant Miss Agnes Thomas as the comic victim of myopia and especially of course Mr. Edmund Gwenn as the rich uncle—are all capital. As for Miss Muriel Pope, who created Pauline in Glasgow one can only say that it is wellnigh impossible not to be tedious in such apart. It might conceivably have assisted matters had she laid greater emphasis on the note of self-righteous priggishness and artificiality.

MR. ARCHER'S ESCAPE.

His friends have heard with concern that Mr. William Archer, the distinguished dramatic critic, who has past returned England has lately had a very narrow escape from drowning. The ship in which he was sailing was run down by an American warship in the Gulf of Mexico, and the passengers and crew had, only a very little time in which to be rescued before she sank. Fortunately the American sailors were able to get them all off, but it was a narrow shave, and in most cases property, mony, and even clothas went to the bottom. Mr. Archer and the Causes for which he works are indeed to be congratulated on his escape.

ON INSTANT SUCCESS.

Mr. Herbert Trench's announcement that on the 18th inst. he will present Mr. Graham Moffat's Scottish play. "Bunty Pulls the Strings," at the Haymarket as a successor to the Sardou piece is the most interesting piece of theatrical news of the moment. Mr. Moffat's comedy was presented to London for the first time same days ago by Mr. Cyril Maude at a matinee at the Playhouse. The house was not full, and the audience was very much as it usually is when the attraction is professional rather than charitable. But the play and the acting of Mr. Moffat and his company made an instant success; next day the critics were practically unanimous in its praise; and before the week was out Mr. Trench was able to announce it for his theatre. The whole story illustrates two facts rather strikingly—the advantages of the matinee system where a new play is concerned, and the powerful position in which a theatrical manager stands who is not himself an actor, and can, therefore, avail himself of anything that is good, without troubling as to whether it contains a part for him. It will be interesting to see how "Bunty Pulls the Strings" draws at the Haymarket. It comes, of course, rather late in the season, but there will still be a few million people in town; and on the whole, although prophecy is as risky in dramatic matters as in cricket, one cannot help feeling that will be success; for it is nearly a perfect play, and it is quite perfectly acted; it is as full of fun as an egg is of meat; and here and there little graver touches occur which complete the charm. The Scottish dialect offers no difficulty whatever to the English or Irish playgoer, while as to the acting all one can say is that the London public will have to go some distance to see anything more enjoyable and artistic than the Bunty of Miss Kate Moffat, the Weelum of Mr. Watson Hume, the Rab of Mr. George Tawde, and the Tammas of the author himself.

M. P. AND MME. REJANE.

The vexed question of stage plays in music halls is to be brought before Parliament again by Mr. Robert Harcourt, who has given notice to ask the Home. Secretary:—Whether he is aware that at the London Hippodrome a variety entertainment is being given containing, inter alia, two items described as Velanche's Marvellous Football Dogs and Mme. Rejane in "La Chance du Mari"; whether this place of entertainment has a licence for stage plays, and is not, whether the first item is permissible, whereas the second is an open defiance of the law; Whether he is further aware that a witness from the Home Office appeared before the Censorship Committed, presided over by the present Postmaster-General, and expressly defended the policy of the present licensing discrimination as against unification of theatre and of music hall licences, which was unanimously recomended by the committee; and whether, in view of these circumstances, he will, either officially or as a common informer under the Act, at once cause Mme, Rejane and her manager to appear before the police magistrate in the District there to answer to the charge of a breach of good manners, decorum, and the public peace by the performance of a public play unlicensed by the Lord Chamberlian, with a view to confining her in future to activities within the legal ambit of the licence, such as those of Velanche's Marvellous Football Dogs.

A GREAT SPECTACLE.

The theatrical season is pegging out a London correspondent tells us and interest centres now chiefiy in the numerous announcement of plans for productions aftes the holidays. One of the most remarkable of these will certainly bethe big "wordless dramatic spectacle" of Max Reinhardt at Olympia. The scene of this will be laid in Roman times, and it will, it s said, surpass anything of the sort ever seen in England. Following on "Sumurun," and with his "Œdipus Rex" production to follow at Covent Garden (under the management of Mr. Martin Harvey), Herr Reinhardt is clearly "booming" in London just now. Miss Eva Tanguay, whom Londoners are shortly to see, is described as the highest paid variety artist in New York, who has probably created more discussion than any others artist in the States. As to her metier, she is, it is explained, the exponent of what is called the Crazy Idea. In other words, she is irresponsible, reckless, eccentric, to a degree, though she is universally credited with having an extraordinary personality.

A Clergyman

Nervous Collapse, Brain Fag, Neuralgia—

For getting things done, making things go, the invigorating stimulus of Phosferine cannot be equalled, says the Rev. A. H. Field. Fully aware that as a clergyman he is bound to make sure of the accuracy of his estimation of Phosferine, this gentleman states that, distinct from other cases, he has verified and tested the efficacy of the tonic himself. It was Phosferine, and Phosferine alone, he says, which raised him from the nervous collapse, remedied the brain-fag and neuralgia which held down his efforts and arrested his plans over a lengthy period. Since taking Phosferine he is entirely free from nervous distresses, and can put his whole heart and energies into his work, and indeed, such is his activity that he has roused many helpers to his cause. Experience has taught the Rev. A. H. Field that numbers of people do not realise their languor and half-hearted efforts are due to lack of nerve force, and he believes they will quicker appreciate the efficacy of Phosferine by learning of his own recovery.

Have No Existence Now.

Rev. A. H. Field, 336, Brettenham Road, Walthamstow, writes: "It gives me much pleasure to testify to the beneficial effects of Phosferine in many cases of nervous disorder, where I have advised the use of your tonic. Some four years ago I myself had a nervous breakdown, and a friend advised Phosferine. I took his advice, and I speedily found that I had acted wisely, for the neuralgic pains and the mental weariness soon took flight, and I was thoroughly braced up. Recently some members of my church, at my suggestion, tried the remedy, and were quite satisfied with the beneficial results. I have advised its use now for nearly four years, and in no case has it yet proved a failure. When one thinks of the great number of so-called nerve remedies, it is satisfactory to find at least one upon which reliance can be placed. I wish your Phosferine every success. When preaching away, I have noticed Phosferine finds a place in the village homes."

Incontestably proved by Forty Years' Medical Experience to be The only Cod Liver Oil which produces the full curative effects in CONSUMPTION AND DISEASES OF THE CHEST, THROAT AFFECTIONS, GENERAL DEBILITY, DISEASES OF THE SKIN, WASTING DISEASES OF CHILDREN, RICKETS, AND ALL SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.

DR. PROSSER JAMES,

Lecturer on Materia Medica, London Hospital.

"Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL contains the whole of the active ingredients of the remedy, and is easily digested. Hence its value, not only in Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, but in a great number of cases to which the Profession is extending its use."

DR. HUNTER SEMPLE,

Physician to the Hospital for Diseases of the Throat and Chest, London.

"I have long been aware of the great reputation enjoyed by the LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL introduced into medical practice by Dr. DE JONGH, and have recommended it with the utmost confidence. I have no hesitation in stating my opinion, that it possesses all the qualities of a good and efficient medicine. Its taste is by no means disagreeable, and might even be called pleasant. I have found Dr. DE JONGH'S OIL very useful in cases of Chronic Cough, and especially in Laryngeal Disease complicated with Consumption."

DR. SAUNDERS, C.B.,

Late Deputy-Inspector-General Army Hospitals, Superintendent London Medical Mission.

"I have used Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL extensively among the sick poor of St. Giles's, and consider it a valuable remedy, especially in the Wasting Diseases of Children."

DR. WHITMORE,

Medical Officer of Health, St. Marylebone, London.

"My own somewhat lengthened experience as a Medical Practitioner enables me with confidence to recommend Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT BROWN COD LIVER OIL as being more uniform in quality, more certain in its effects, more palatable, and infinitely less likely to disagree with the stomach than the Pale Oil. If I were asked for an explanation of the marked success which for so many years has attended the administration of Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL, I should say that it is owing to its extraordinary medicinal, dietetic, and regiminal properties, and which are found to exist in no other medicine that I am acquainted with, in such uniform combination.

Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL is supplied ONLY in IMPERIAL Half-Pints, Pints and Quarts, sealed with BETTS' Patent Capsule impressed on the top with Dr. DE JONGH'S Stamp, and on the side with his Signature, and the Signature of ANSAR, HARFORD & Co.; and bearing under the wrapper a Label with the same Stamp and Signatures.
